If We Never Reach Out

Jeff,
Well 2 years in a row
were battin' a thousand, (English

Peggy O'Neill

If we never reach out
And we close our eyes
To the world around us
With our brothers' cries,

Then how can we know
When the need is great?
If the children die,
It will be too late.

The choice is ours
If we give or we take.
Only time will tell
If we've made a mistake.

If we don't show concern
About the souls of others,
Then how can we say
That they are our brothers?

So we'll reach out our hearts
To our brothers' needs,
And we'll open our ears
To his lonely pleas.

The answer to suffering
Lies within each,
And only concerned people
Can have an outreach.

Northside and the community opened up to each other, as each was able to advance a little farther with the help of the other. Various organizations were provided the use of the auditorium for their needs, and the pool was open year around to the public for recreational purposes.

Titanbackers showed their support as they attended sports events regularly. The community and Northside "reached out" to each other in many ways.

Band Adds Life, Color to Sports Events

Without a band that provides plenty of good sounds, a basketball or a football game would be a real "drag," so to speak. North's band spent many long hours practicing, and drilling, and rehearsing for all sorts of programs, many of which involved sports here at school.

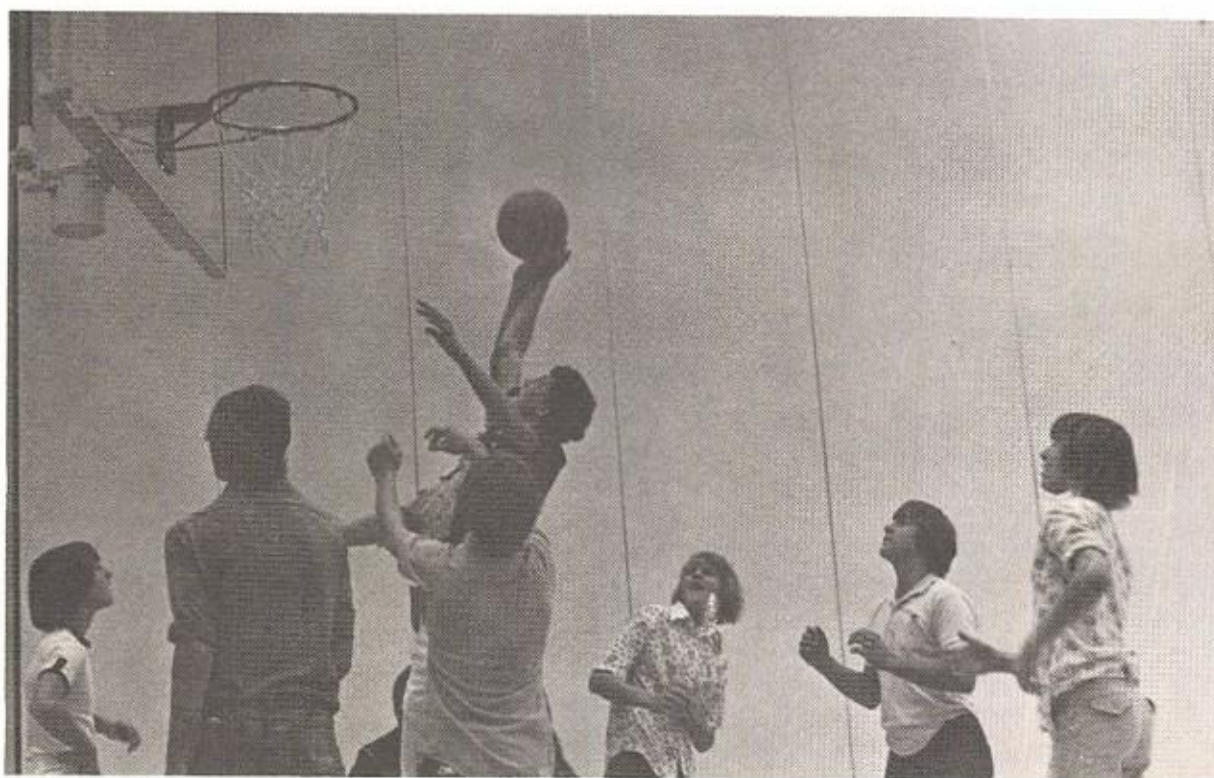

Throughout the summer months when the majority of the school was asleep, the band was marching in the heat of the day on the school parking lot.

With the addition of the uniform of the band members, and the hard work and long practices, all has paid off for the band.

Marching band members, along with the Titanettes, provided crowds with entertainment at half time. The band performed in various local parades. The band was always there when there was a need for more "life." Northside should be proud — the band sought to "reach out."

ABOVE: Boys spend their lunch period participating in a "hot" basketball game in the gymnasium.

'Move on, Move on,

Move on . . .

. . . to bigger and better things,' is the cry of all Northside Titans. Muncie North is on the move, exploring new regions and adding new dimensions to the community, one of which is sharing. Northside is privileged to open its doors to kids of all ages in the sharing of its facilities. Community friends appreciate the use of the gym, the swimming pool, and the tennis courts, while the cafeteria, auditorium, and library provide pleasant meeting places.

In a student's life certain events hold special memories for all, probably the most important being graduation. Northside's first full class of 268 would most likely agree.

Other school year events are the prom, the plays, Open House, and the traditional event known as the Winter Festival, a day set aside for activities and the viewing of a popular movie, which helps break the monotony of everyday classes.

A new dimension in the 1974 year at North is the selection of a year-book queen. The years continue to be full for Northside students as they move on.

School Offers Mental, Physical Activities

At the beginning of the school year, students campaigned and voted for class officers. Fall sports began with parents of team members and community friends joining Northsiders at home football games.

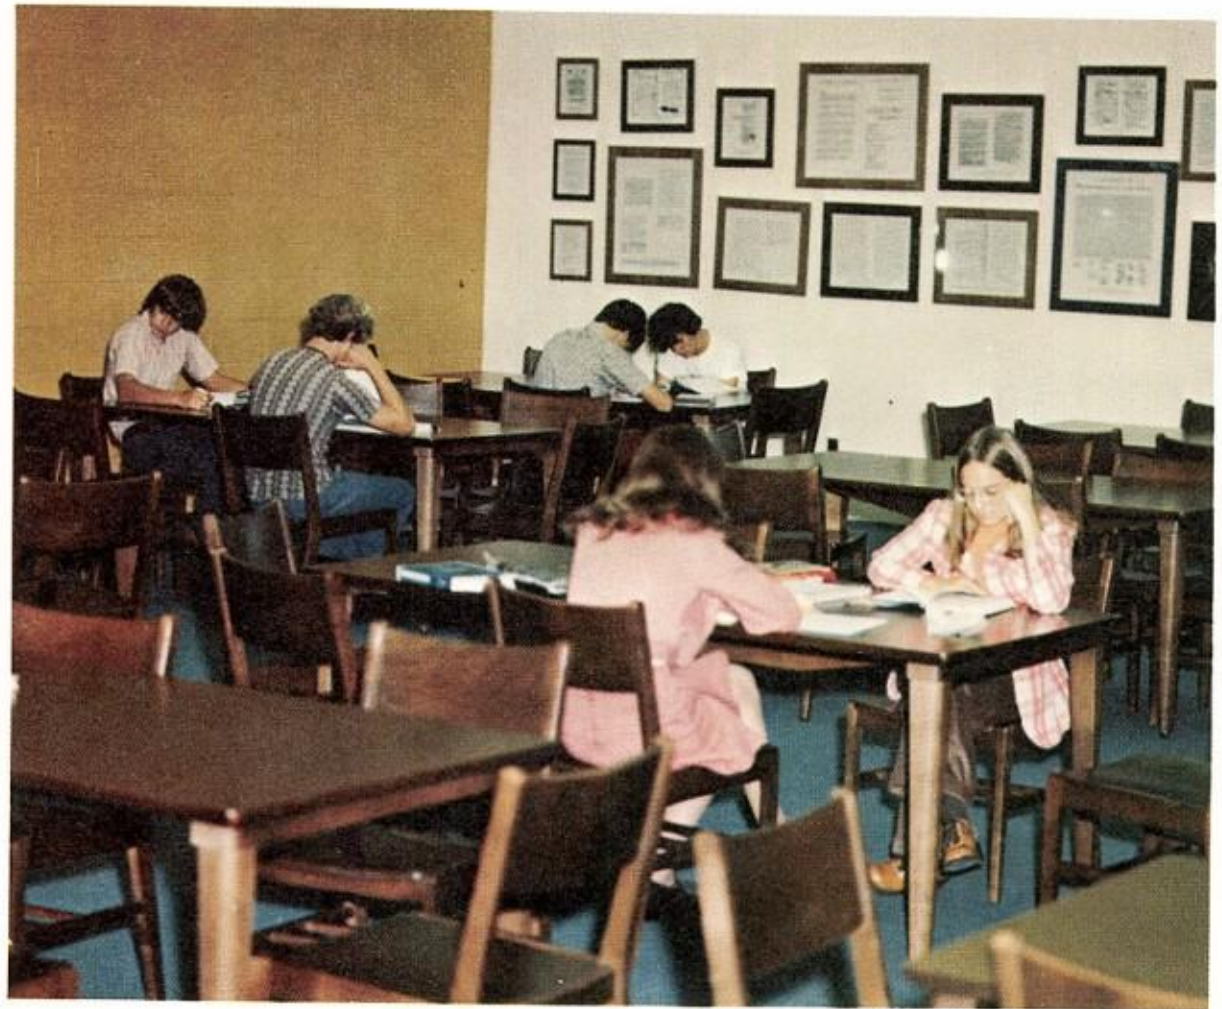

Classes began at 7:50 each morning, with students earning credits in the pool, in cars, at other schools, with on-the-job training, and in the classroom.

Even during the lunch hour, students found time to relax, dance, workout in the gymnasium, or "do their own thing."

In the mist of all activity, the library provided a quiet place to study.

Summer Offers Carefree Days to Students

Working, playing, traveling, experiencing — combined to create the summer of '73. Students found time to play tennis, take a dip in the pool, brush up on their gymnastic skills, and take a break now and then.

Although Northside appeared to be "asleep" until the opening of its doors in August, a few groups were very much "awake." The varsity and reserve baseball teams practiced throughout the summer months, and the band spent mornings drilling on their routines.

The junior class spent some time on money-raising projects, one of which was a car wash.

Activities Keep Students Involved

Student life activities at North were no different from activities at any other high school.

Studies, extra-curricular activities, and jobs combined to provide students with a busy schedule and a full day. Involvement became a key word in the lives of many, as students sought to further their educational and occupational desires by participating in various school-oriented projects.

Students found little time to call their own as school filled the larger part of their day. Practicing, drilling, and cramming were words on the minds of many students.

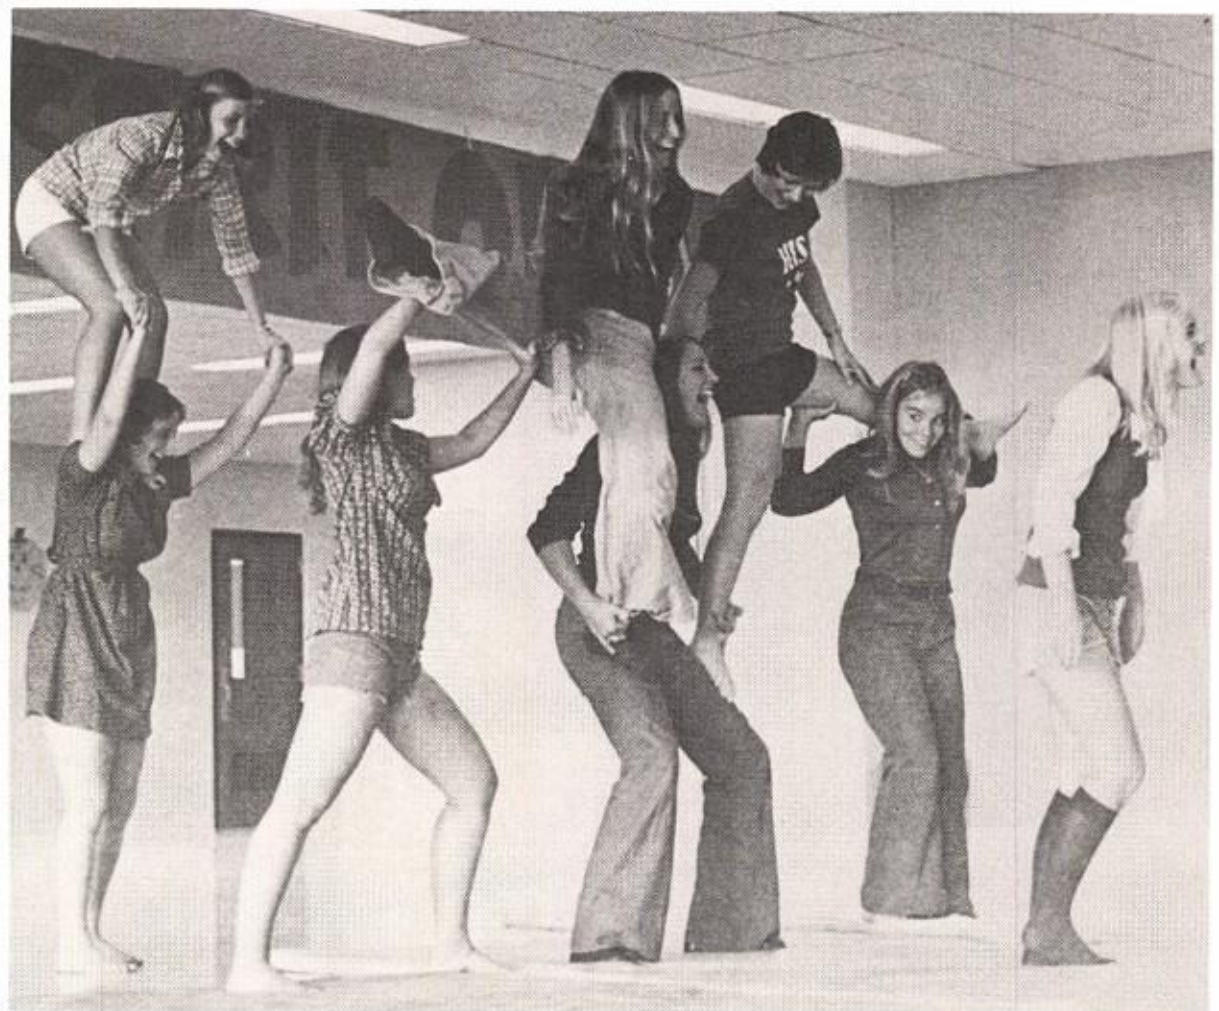

Working with the community, volunteering time to various organizations, and "reaching out" to lend a hand was the main objective of many students at North. Thus, leadership and scholarship resulted from the involvement.

286 Graduate: First Full Class Leaves North

Holding their heads high and with an air of accomplishment, the first full class from Northside High School marched down the aisles of Emens Auditorium on May 22, 1973, to complete the final step of their high school careers. As they gathered for the last time as Northside students, feelings of joy, relief, sorrow, inexplicable happiness and fears for the future all controlled the emotions of the 286 seniors. It was a time of great emotion and sentiment, as seniors and families thought about past years and future years, college, careers, marriage, and stepping out into life. Thus were these and many more feelings expressed in the speeches given by Karen Kane, Tom Spurgeon, and Susan Sciara.

In black robes flowing and steps of haste, the seniors were happy to grasp their long-sought-after diplomas, which were presented by Dr. Robert Freeman, aided by Mr. Charles Marcus, Mr. Charles Childers, and Mrs. Donna Zoll. When all had received their diplomas, they

'Underwater Paradise' Provides Fishy Setting

Spring brings, along with its gentle breezes and new flowers, a tradition called "The Prom." For Northside High School it was no different. All the excitement and anticipation that accompanies the creation of a prom was alive at North as juniors anxiously prepared "Underwater Paradise."

Underwater decorations greeted the guests as they were led the way to the dance floor by weather-beaten driftwood signs. A ghostly shipwreck and pink octopus also helped to create a sea-like atmosphere. Roosevelt Johnson and the 7 C's set the scene as couples danced under schools of fish which floated from the ceiling.

No prom is complete without a queen, and Kristen Tomlinson was appropriately named. Her court consisted of junior girls Julie Hannah, Ann Liston, Janie Peckinpaugh, Pam Snyder, and P.J. Wickman.

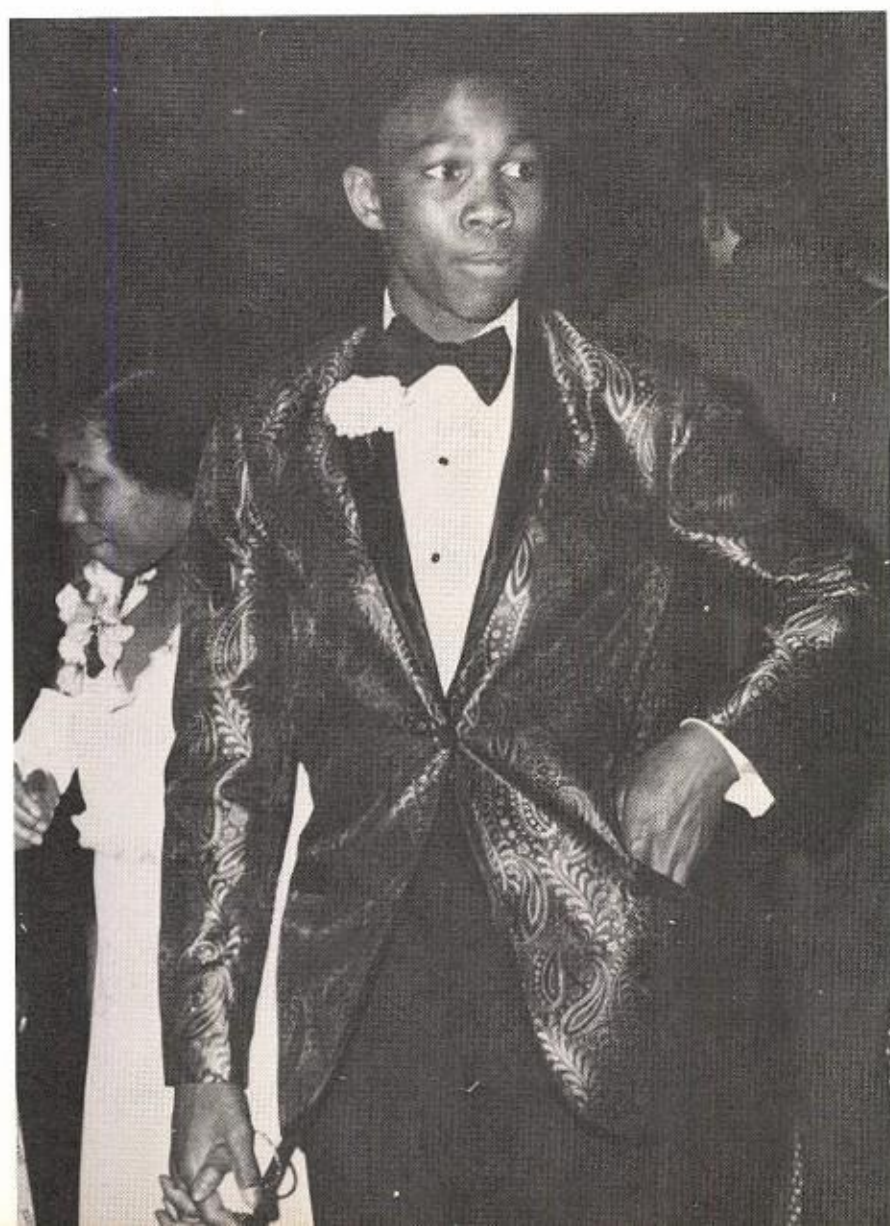

The fifth of May continued into the sixth of May as couples began to disperse from the North cafeteria to change from formals and tuxedos, and head for parties and early morning breakfasts.

'Fun' Activities Highlight Winter Festival

Established in 1973, the Winter Festival was observed once again this year in place of a homecoming. Sponsored by the Student Council, the Winter Festival was held on February 8 to provide a change in pace from the regular school day.

School clubs, classes, and Student Council members planned various activities for the day, including such things as a tug of war, a trike-a-thon, a karate demonstration, and some basketball games.

JCL rented slaves and provided a taxi service by chariot, while French Club sponsored a haunted house. There was also a Sweet Shop Walk and several ball toss games.

Sports Keep Students Active, Energetic

Sports involve a person and build a person — inside and out. Various athletes participated in sports, sometimes more than one. Students had the opportunity to become involved in any sport, such as football, track, baseball, swimming, or volleyball.

Northside athletes built a name for themselves and for their school. The Titans became known for their strong athletic ability, and community friends have been proud of Northside's accomplishments in the sports field.

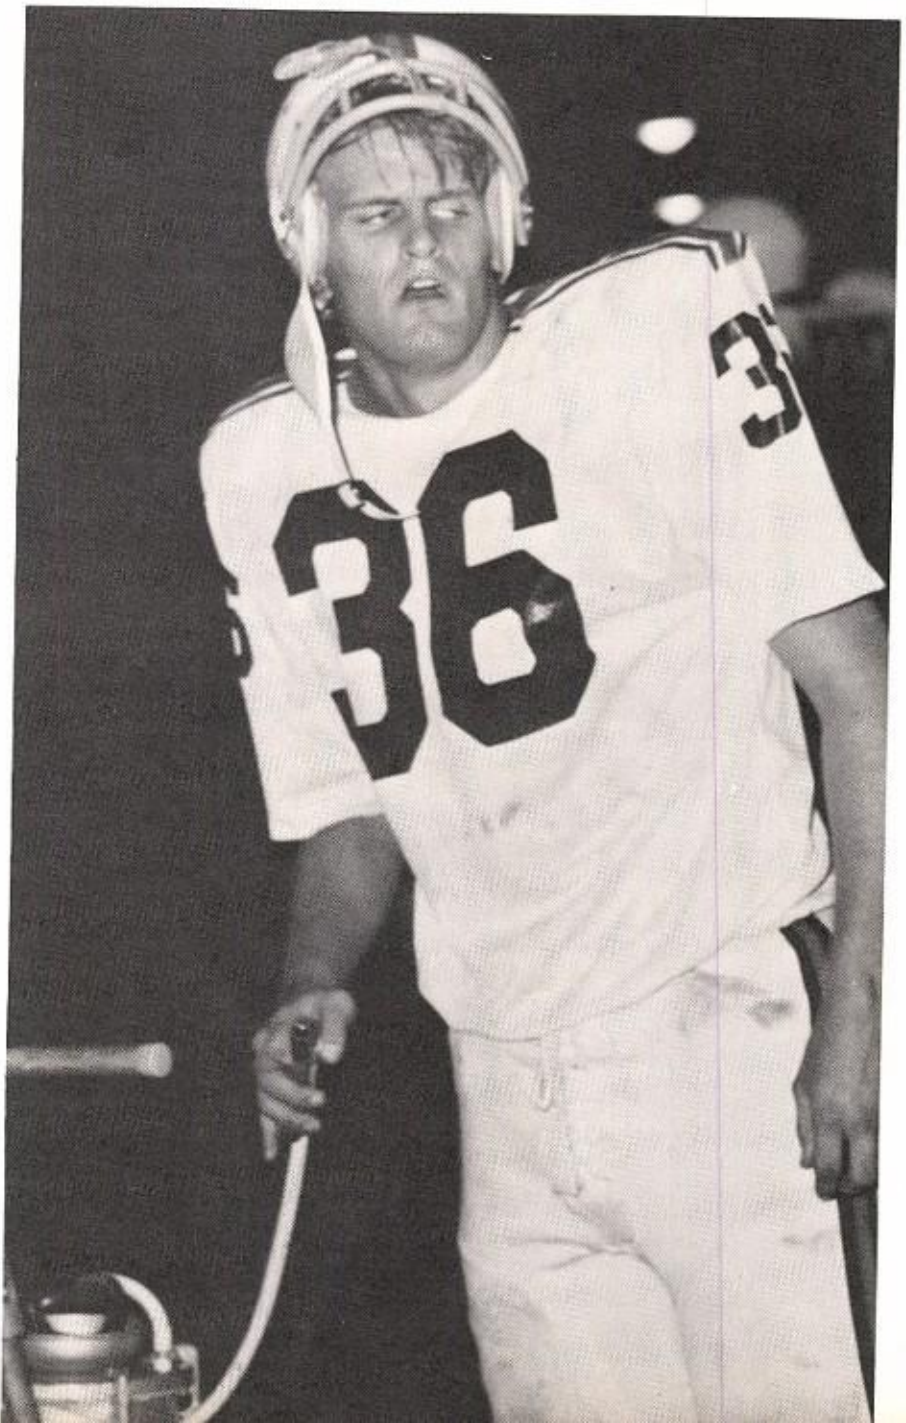

Sports played an important part in most students' lives, whether it meant participation in the sport, or "spirit" from the sidelines.

Education Week Features Open House

"Getting Involved" was the theme chosen this year for American Education Week, October 20-26. The theme was appropriately selected, as students, parents, faculty, and administrators maintained a constant involvement throughout the week.

Open House featured classroom visitation when parents were provided the opportunity to meet with teachers and administrators. Toward the end of the evening, visitors viewed the Stage Band in the cafeteria, and the Swing Choir performed in the auditorium. Various departments presented demonstrations, such as the boys' foods class, and students enrolled in the radio-TV class.

Other activities for American Education Week included the living classroom at the Muncie Mall presented by Mrs. Greta Young's drama class. A school board meeting was open to the public on October 23.

Cast Presents 'The Great God Brown'

Weeks of work, tryouts, and rehearsals paid off when Northside dramatics presented Eugene O'Neill's "The Great God Brown" on November 15 and 16.

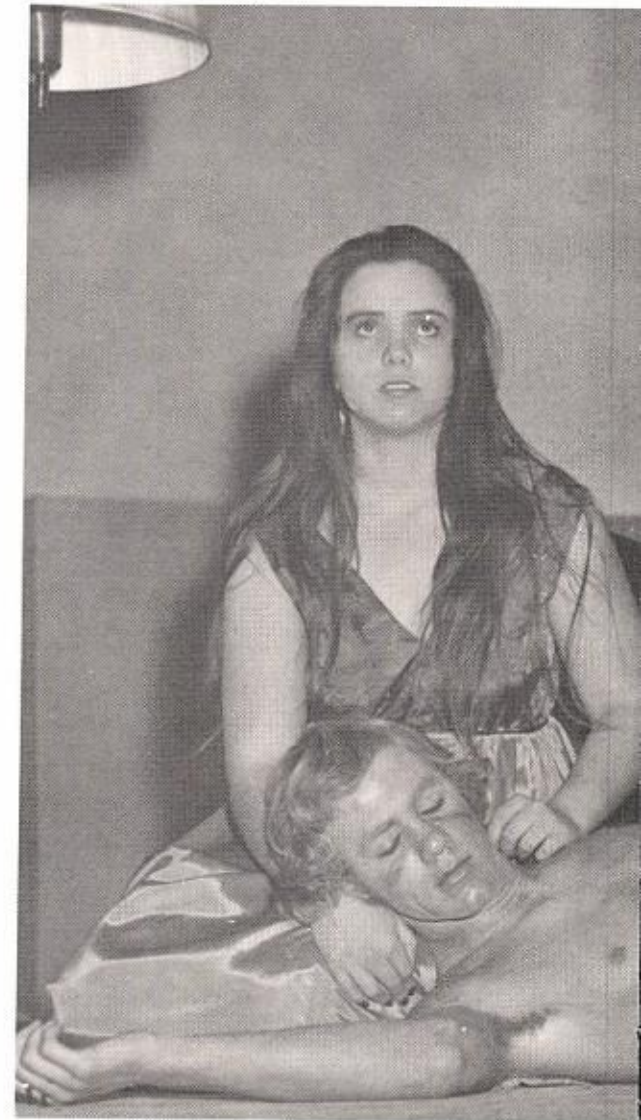

Under the direction of Mrs. Greta Young, the basic idea of the play was that people could not find true happiness because they were afraid to be themselves.

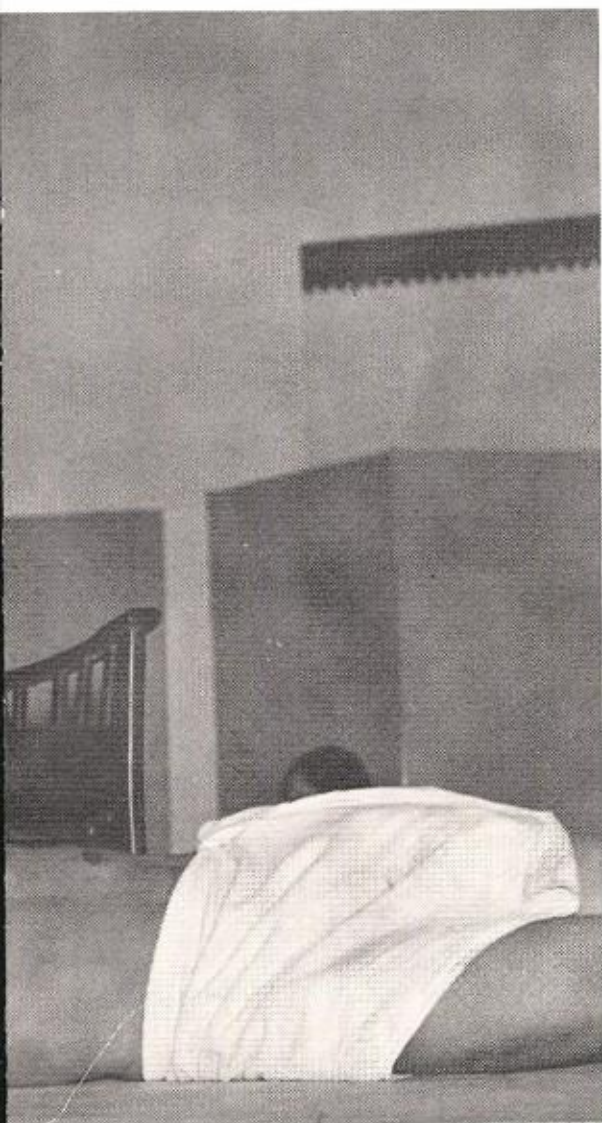

Many students' and teachers' talents were put to use making colorful, present-day costumes and props. The setting changed often from the different characters' homes to their offices.

Masks made by David Robinson added to the performance. Masks allowed the actors to portray the characters as they really were, and the characters as they seemed to other people.

First Time Students Elect Yearbook Queen

Four girls were nominated from the classes to compete for the title of North Star Queen. Ann Liston, senior; Shelley Jackson, junior; Nancy Marshall, sophomore; and Nancy Darter, freshman, were selected as class candidates.

Two one-week yearbook sales campaigns were conducted. The first was held in the first of October, and the second campaign was held November 5-9. Before the October campaign, all students had the opportunity to nominate one girl from their class. The girl who received the most votes from her classmates became the candidate for the title.

Students who ordered a 1974 North Star were allowed to vote for the candidate of their choice. Senior Ann Liston received the most votes, and she became the yearbook queen.

The North Star queen received the first copy of the book, and she was honored at an autograph party when yearbooks were distributed in the spring.

'Write on, Write on,

Write on . . .

... to expand your mind and further your education,' says the voice of society to the ears of the students. Education is the process of shaping and molding a student's life, forming it to become independent and ready to face the environment in which the student lives. For the students at Northside, there is the opportunity to choose and follow a desired goal. Courses are offered in almost every area — from photography to physics, clothing to calculus, or jewelry-making to government.

In every aspect of an education, a student encounters feelings of frustration, accomplishment, discouragement, and unexpected pleasures, all of which come together to form a student's years of learning and experiencing.

English: A Course for Everybody

One of the largest departments at Northside, the English area had much to offer to students taking the required courses and the electives as well. The Greek and Latin derivatives class was opened to students interested in improving their vocabularies and understanding the origins of various words.

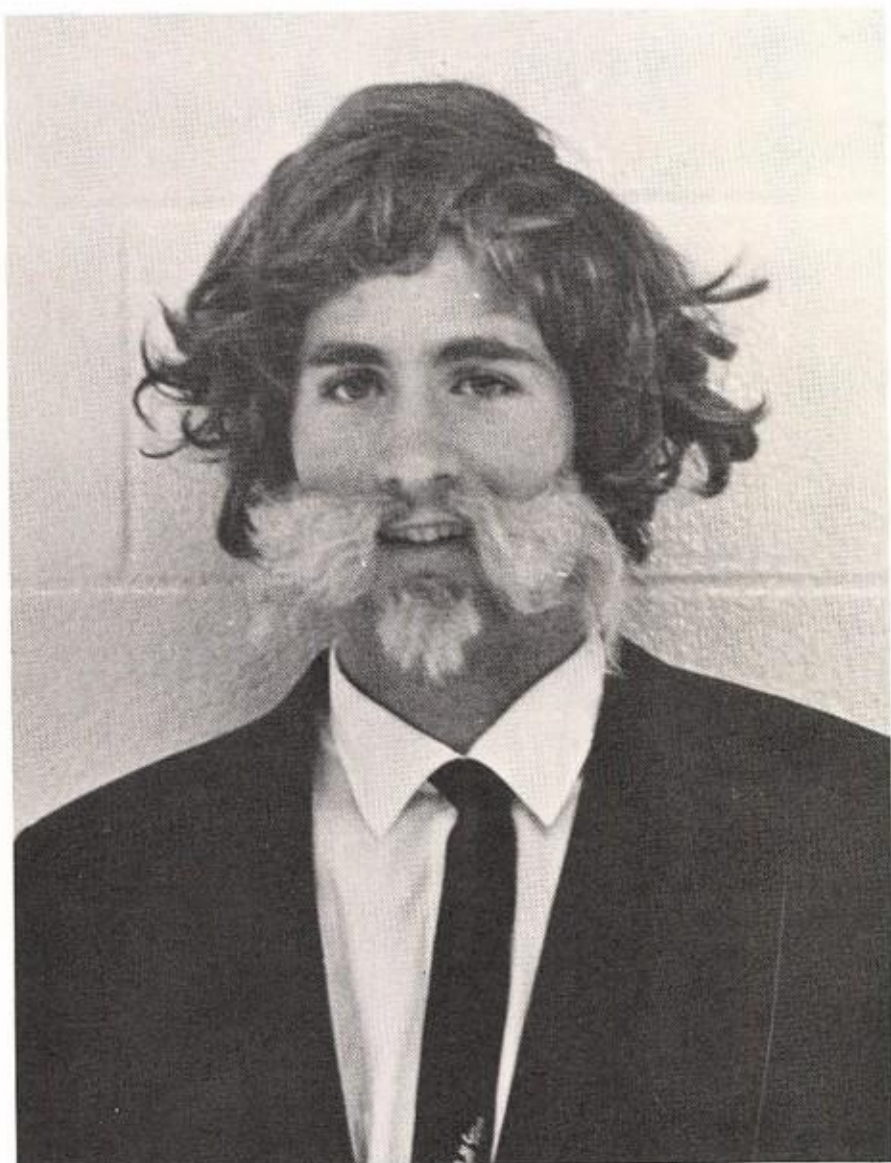

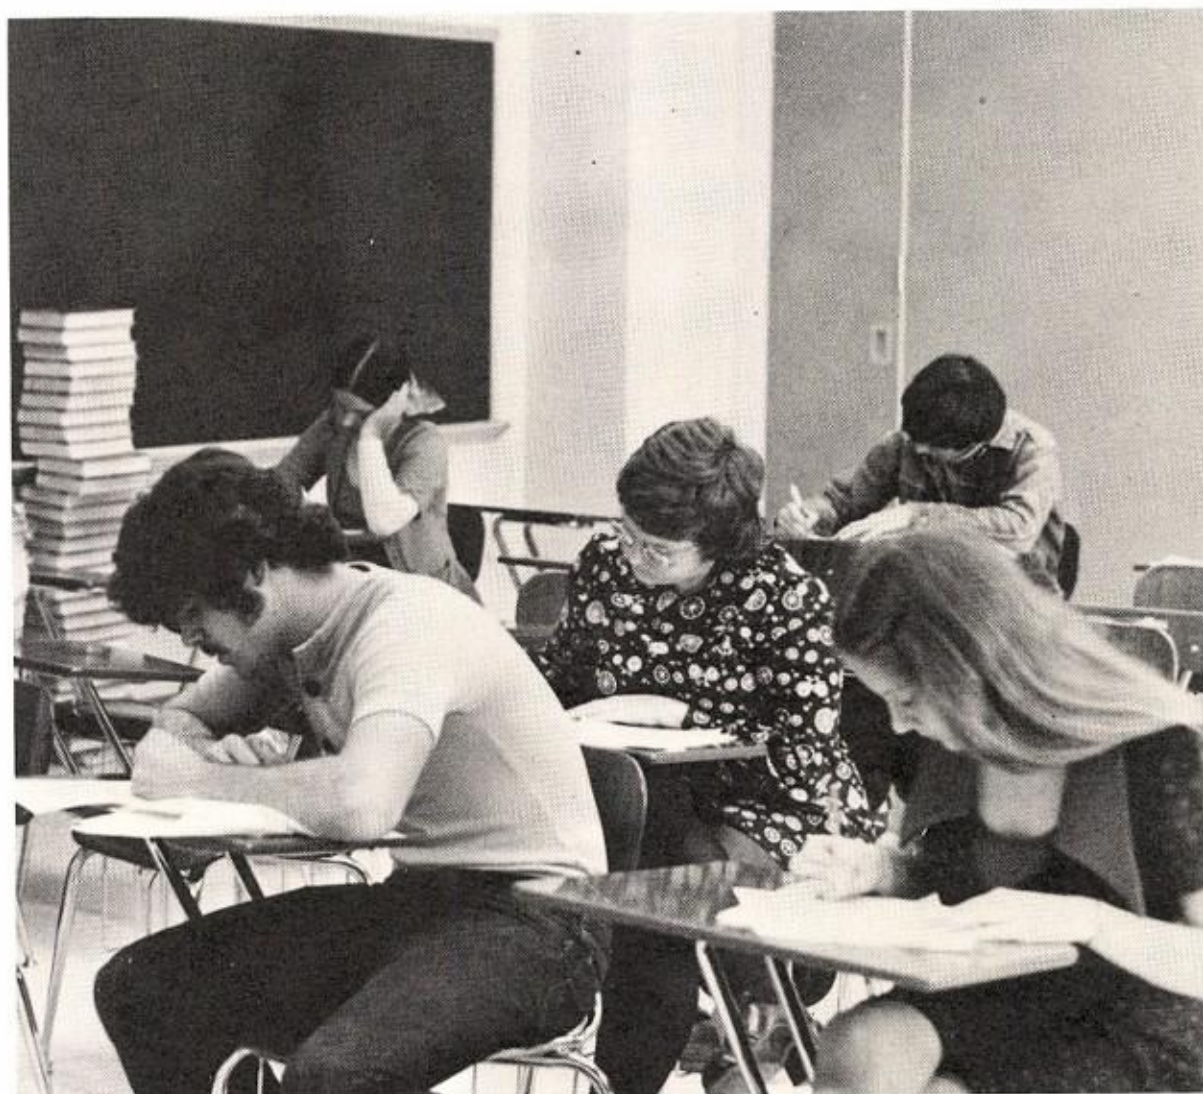

Contemporary Literature, Bible Literature, Shakespeare, Drama, Debate, and Journalism were a few of the courses offered.

English is a required course for all but seniors.

English Courses Take Time, Hard Work

In the English department, Drama, Debate, and Publications were three courses which required much time and hard work to produce the very best. Students in dramatics spent countless hours at rehearsals planning for the school plays. Debaters were found after school with many affirmative or negative debate cards in preparation for a debate tournament.

Yearbook and newspaper staffers were found at any time of the day rushing to meet a deadline for on-time final products.

Foreign Language Students Develop Skills

Students were free to select from French, Spanish, and Latin in the Foreign Language department.

First year language students studied and drilled to develop their vocabularies and to acquaint themselves with the foreign tongues, while second year students spent much of their time in the conjugation of verbs and in the memorization of different verb tenses. Third and fourth year students got a chance to practice speaking the languages, since there was much emphasis placed on oral work. Students who majored in a language also developed their translation skills by reading literature written by authors of the countries.

Faculty members of the department were Dr. Robert Hancock and Mr. Ron Miller, Spanish; Mrs. Sue Scott, French; and Mrs. Judith Hahn, Latin.

Industrial Technology Appeals to Many

With the addition of one teacher and more elective classes offered, the Industrial Technology department expanded with the appeal of several girls as well as boys.

New programs gave students a chance to work in more specialized areas. Students in Power and Transportation class did an in-depth study of a small engine, with each student disassembling and examining his own engine.

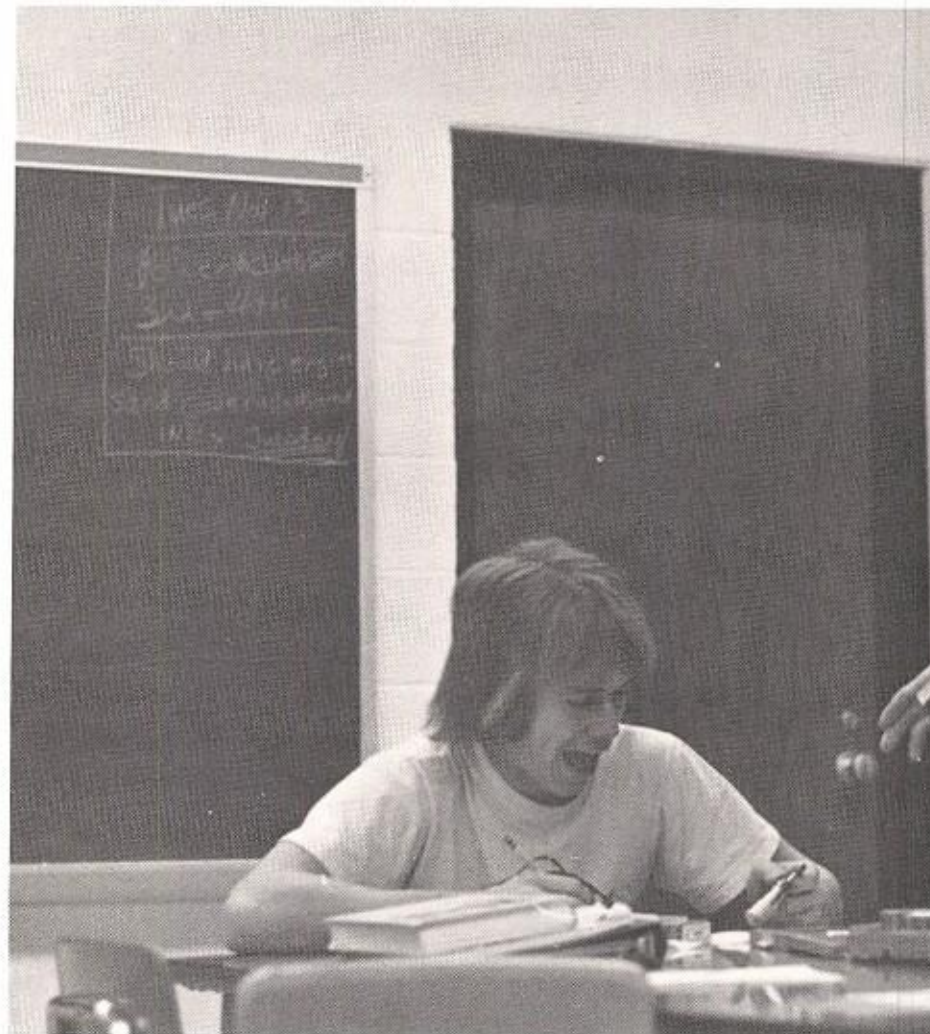

Five new one semester classes were added: Architecture, Drafting and Design, Basic Principles of Photography, Construction Drafting, and Electricity and Electronics.

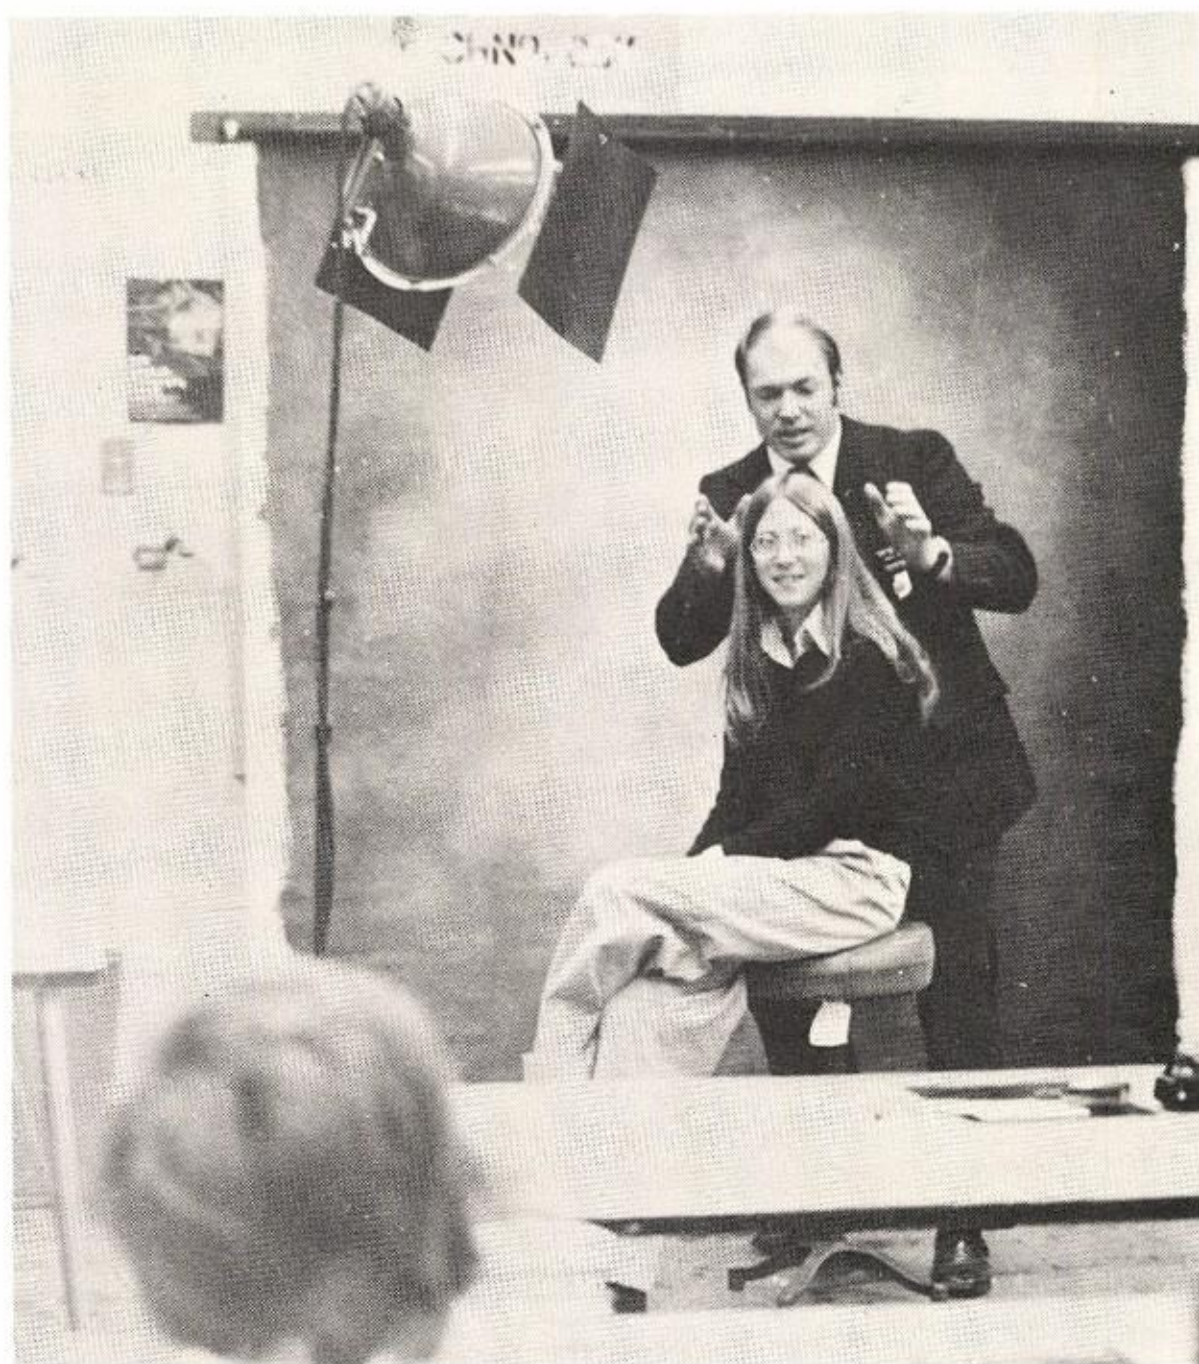

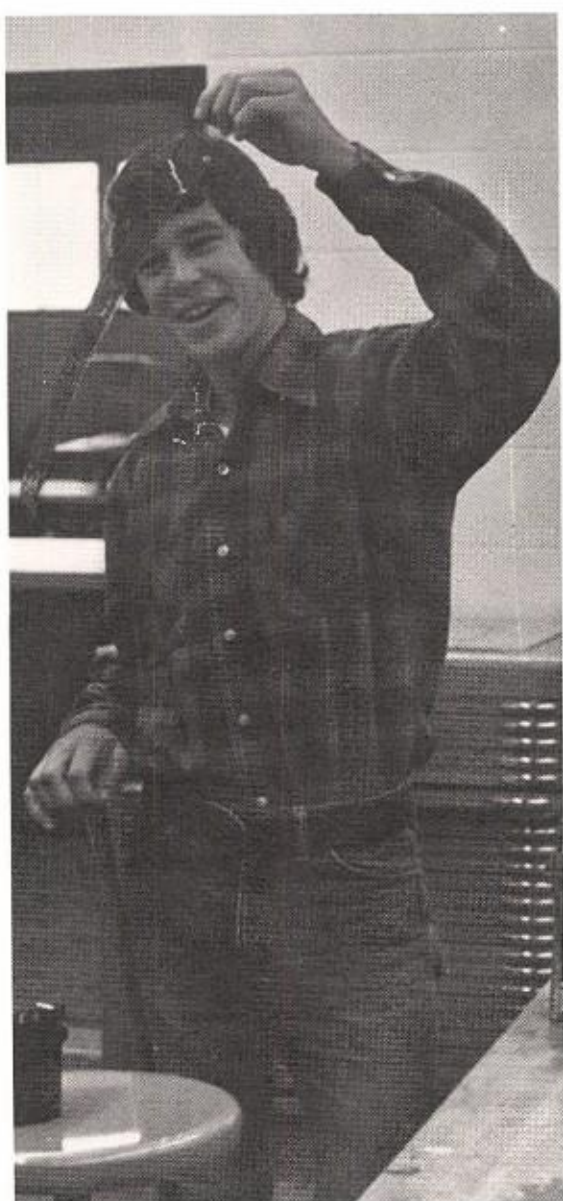

Mr. Steve Jarboe was new to the department, working with Mr. Phillip Hallenbeck and Mr. William Imes.

Home Economics Offers HERO Program

The field of Home Economics attracted many students, both boys and girls. Students selected interesting classes ranging from Child Care to the very popular Boys' Foods.

In the recently added Home Arts and Crafts class, girls learned to develop their skills more fully by creating knitted, crocheted, embroidered, and macramed items. Those enrolled in Interior Decorating learned about furniture styles, color scheme, and related subjects.

Six students participated in the HERO program offered at Northside for the first time. The program gives students credit for working in home economic related jobs.

Exploratory teaching gives students a chance to find out if teaching is the career they want to pursue, and if they can express themselves by choosing such a career.

ABOVE: Teresa Weakley and Patricia Bell prepare to greet customers at their afternoon jobs in the HERO program.

Students Choose from a Variety in Math

Algebra, Shop Mathematics, Trigonometry, Calculus, Geometry, Business Mathematics, Analytic Geometry, and General Mathematics were the courses offered to students wishing to pursue their education in mathematics this year.

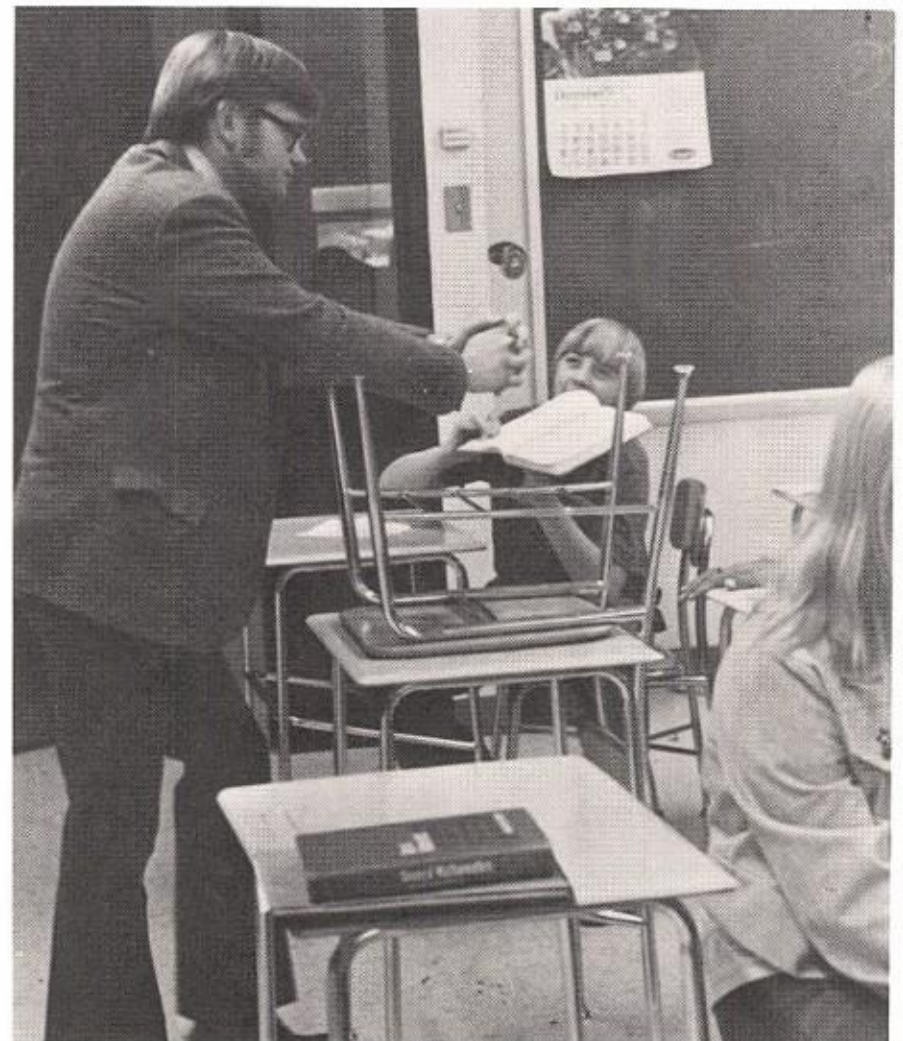

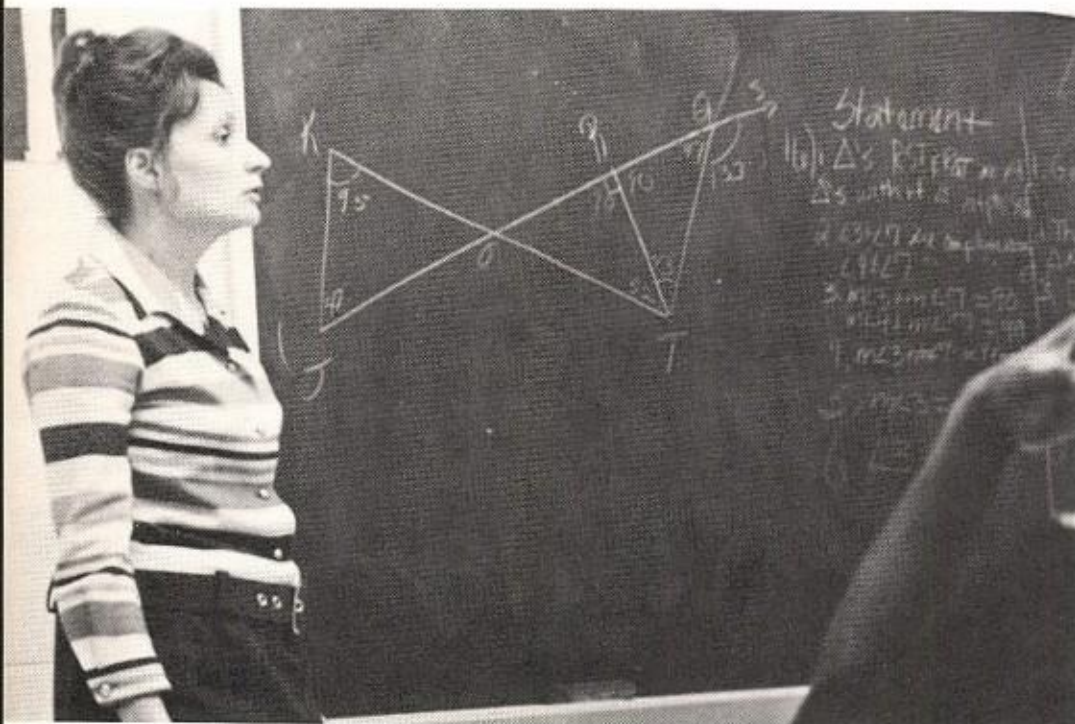

Coaching the mathematics teachers, department chairman Mr. Ramon Alexander taught subjects in that area along with six other teachers.

Many students who were enrolled in Mathematics were engaged in the five-year program — beginning with the study of Algebra and carrying through to Calculus. Other students followed through in some area for specialization purposes with the idea of a possible major or a teaching career in the subject.

Labs Provide Knowledge in Science Classes

Various labs played an important part in the science department this year. Classes included in the department are Botany, Biology, Shrubbery and Lawn Care, Zoology, Conservation, Applied Life Science, Earth Science, Chemistry, Physics, and Physical Science. Many of these science classes used techniques applied in labs to gain knowledge through research and common practices.

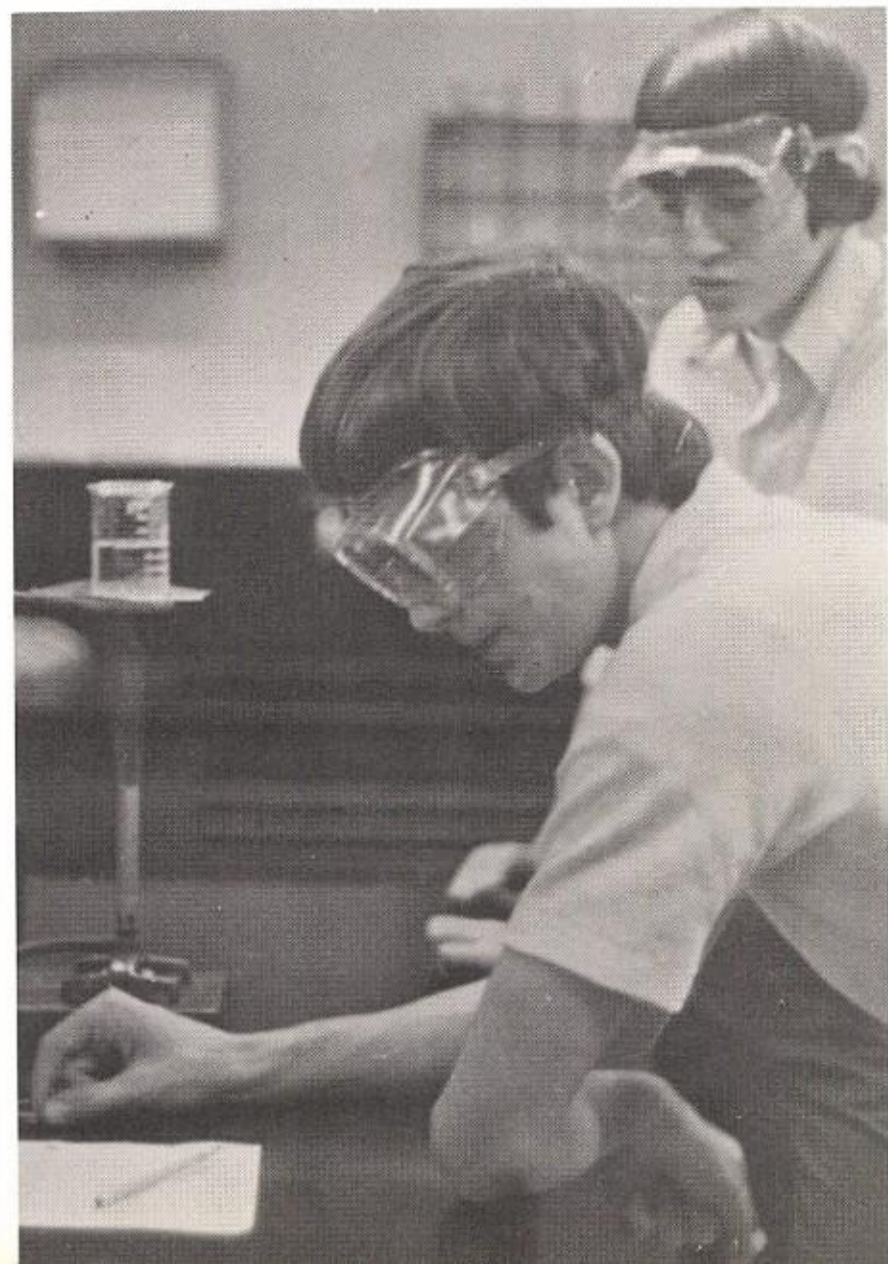

Under the direction of department chairman Mr. John Huffman, seven additional teachers made up the faculty in the Science department.

Many students elected science classes such as Chemistry and Physics, while many freshmen were enrolled in required Biology classes.

BELOW: Mr. Don Rogers emphasizes the importance of a drawing to his painting and drawing class.

Jewelry, Ceramics, Painting and Drawing, Sculpture, Graphics, Textiles, and general art classes all combined to create the courses offered in the art department. Students found time to create and construct their own projects and to carry out their ideas.

Projects ranged from molding pottery to making earrings to designing colorful, bold signs and posters, which were displayed throughout the school.

Along with department chairman Mr. John Loukos, Mrs. Marilyn O'Kelly and Mr. Don Rogers taught various facets of art to students interested in the art field.

Students Elect Courses in Social Studies

Economics, U.S. History, Sociology, Modern Problems, Government, World Affairs, and World Geography are the courses that were offered in the social studies department.

Besides following courses which were required, many students elected courses which aided them in their understanding of current events.

Guest speakers played a big role in social studies since they provided additional information on the issue at hand.

Business Department Offers DE, COE

Besides offering such classes as General Business, Typing, Shorthand, Business Communications, Bookkeeping, Business Law, Office Machines, and Office Practice, the Business department initiated the COE program for the first time, along with the DE program.

Seven students from North were enrolled in COE and attended classes at Central under the direction of Mr. Phil Carey.

Band, Choirs Participate in Local Programs

Band members and choral groups entertained and performed for many different schools and community organizations, especially throughout the Christmas holidays.

Choral groups from North joined with elementary, junior, and senior high schools in the community for the annual Christmas Sing at the Fieldhouse.

When the choirs were busy entertaining community friends, band members were actively supporting the athletic teams and participating in parades and contests held in and around Muncie.

Department chairman Mrs. Doris Faulkner directed the choirs, while Mr. Richard Campos headed the bands.

Students Physically Exert Themselves in P.E.

A chore for some, a delight for others, Physical Education aims at body-building by means of vigorous exercise. It can bring perspiration and sore muscles, but it can also produce a sense of personal satisfaction that comes with a trim body and physical agility.

Physical Education offered a wide variety of sport — from swimming to tumbling, and from basketball to tennis — but all of it intended to build sound bodies to go along with sound minds developed in the more academic pursuits.

Students Gain Administrative Experience

Many students gave aid in the school's library, dispensary, office, audio-visual and guidance center this year as they gave up study halls to become assistants. Helping shelve and check out books, distributing bandages and supplies for minor injuries, and other helpful tasks relieved much of the work from the librarian, Mrs. Cynthia Marshall, and nurse, Mrs. Cleo Haney. The AV assistants distributed projectors, films, and other equipment to rooms, while the office assistants picked up attendance cards and performed minor jobs around the offices. The guidance counselors benefitted from their assistants as they filed cards and distributed passes to students. Students also worked in the bookstore selling school supplies.

'Lead on, Lead on,

Lead on . . .

. . . to improve club standing at Northside as well as in the community,' state students involved in extracurricular activities.

Students work in clubs where they compete with students from North, as well as with students from other schools.

In other organizations, Northside students and advisers work together to put out newspapers, plays, musical performances, and the yearbook. The Student Council works with the administration to develop better communication lines. "N" club members draw crowds to many sports events, while the cheerblock provides spirit for the events.

French and Spanish clubs plan meetings and parties, while JCL holds its annual slave auction.

Northside has many students active in National Honor Society and DECA. Still, more students participate in clubs ranging from art to chess to physics.

Through extracurricular activities, Northside students reach out.

Many Publications staffers found that it took endless hours of work and total frustration to achieve their goal — a finished product. To the Northside News staff, this meant night sessions to 6:00 p.m., when the paper needed to be at Ball State to be taken to Hartford City for publication. And to yearbook staffers this meant total dedication at every deadline — until the book was completed in early March.

Publications adviser Mrs. Betty Shondell relieved some of the staff members of deadline pressures by lending a hand — especially to the editors, who began to wonder if what they were doing was worth all of the effort put into it.

Sue Roszell and Sue Courtney served as co-editors of the Northside News during the first semester, and Mark Rowland replaced Sue Roszell when she graduated in January. Mary Ann Terhune was editor of the North Star.

Debaters Host Tournament; Place First

Hosting their second annual debate tournament on December 8, North debaters put two new trophies in the showcase when the sub-varsity team took first place out of eight teams, and a two man team took a first place. Northside placed first in the tournament.

Masque and gavel members put much time and energy into the production of the school play, "The Great God Brown." The cast made their own costumes, and masks were made by several members.

Cheerblocks Add Spirit to Home Games

Girls' Cheerblock, sponsored by Miss Janie Wierks, had a new appearance this year as they all had matching blue jumpsuits with red turtleneck sweaters underneath. Although they only cheered as an organized group at home games, they had fan buses for many out-of-town games.

Boys' Cheerblock, with Mr. David Haire as sponsor, was mighty again this year, giving much vocal assistance with the added yells to the girls' cheers. The 'N' Club, sponsored by Mr. Ken Miller, consisted of boys who had received a Northside varsity letter and paid their membership dues.

Four Seniors Receive Merit Certificates

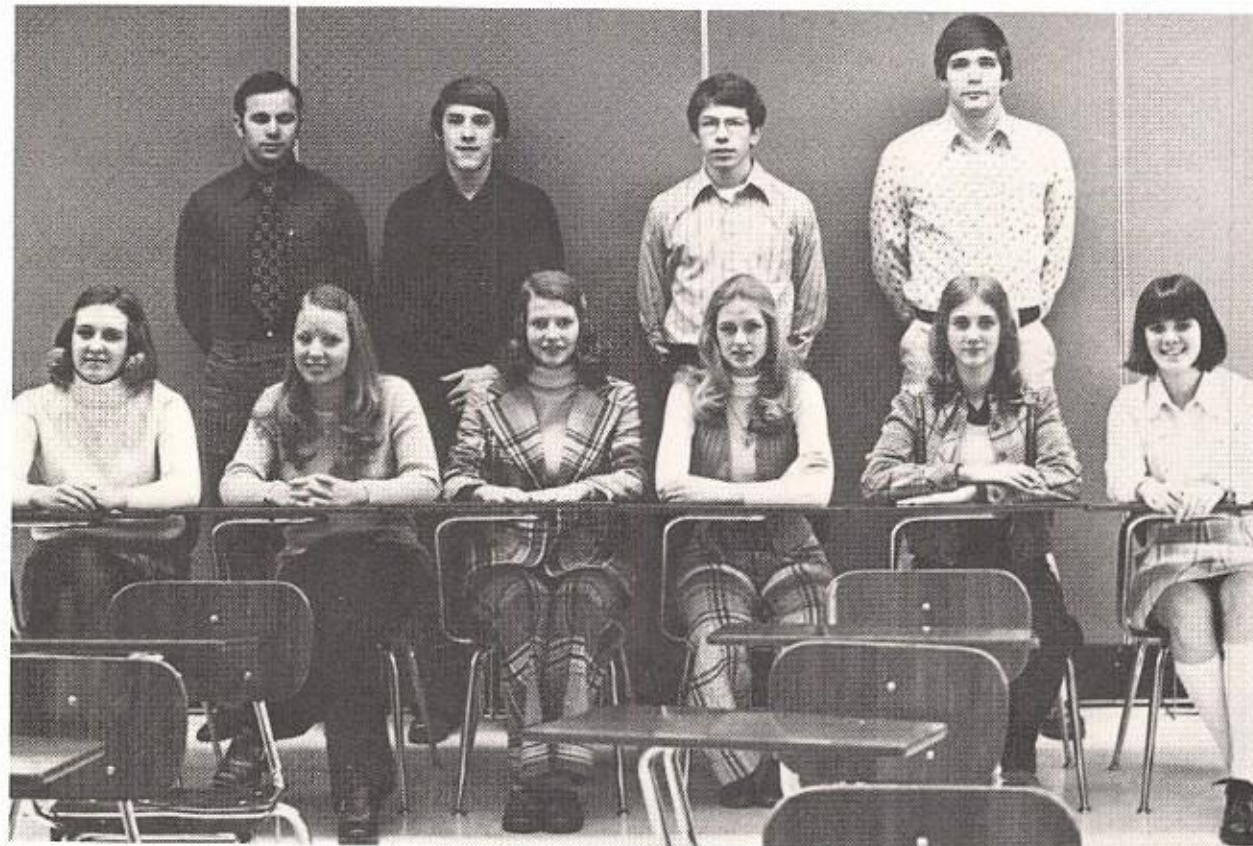

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation awarded Certificates of Merit to four Northside seniors as they competed for Merit Scholarships. Only one half of one percent of the nation's secondary school seniors received these scholarships, or about 3100 of the 14,000 finalists.

Representatives and alternates destined for Girls' and Boys' State were chosen by a committee of teachers from the Social Studies department. Candidates' grades, ability to participate in class discussions, and desire to be involved with issues concerning modern government were factors taken into consideration by the committee. Both sessions were held in June on the Indiana State University campus.

Photographs that were submitted to be judged were taken at various locations around Muncie — including photos at Ball State and the county courthouse. Camera Club sponsors and members of the Art department made final selections on the entries.

School Organizes FCA, Good News Club

A new organization at Northside this year, the Good News Club, was formed to provide Christians with a chance to meet together and have fellowship. Students from various church backgrounds met every week to share and to study the Bible. Different parts of the Bible were reviewed each week and often members suggested questions they had about the Bible for the entire group to discuss. Good News Club is sponsored by Mrs. Barbara Pugh.

Sponsored by Mr. Myron Dickerson and Mr. Hans Sheridan, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes was introduced this year by a group of interested students who attended the annual FCA convention held in Bloomington last spring. The club met in several members' homes during the year. The FCA held a pre-season basketball open house, a dance, and sold booster tags for basketball games as moneymaking projects, with the proceeds going toward the trip to the state convention and a summer camp.

Distributive Education Clubs of America, sponsored by Mr. Forrest Sears, is a class offered to juniors and seniors who wish to pursue a career in the areas of Marketing and distribution.

Students in the DECA program were employed at pet shops, department stores, gas stations, drug stores, restaurants, and other business establishments, which served as their training stations. The Muncie Mall provided jobs for many of the students enrolled in DECA, while downtown merchants and other local businessmen employed North students.

On Saturday, February 9, DECA members participated in the district contest at Ball State University. Areas of competition in the contest included Window Display, Radio Commercial Writing, Advertising Layout, Business Letter Writing, Student of the Year, Supermarket Chashiering, Interview, Miss Indiana DECA, Spelling, and Math.

Spanish Clubs Tour Madrid, Malaga in Spring

Touring Madrid and Malaga during Spring vacation, April 6-13, was one of the highlights for members of the Spanish Club. The trip, consisting of 51 students from Northside, Central, and Southside, took the members to the Costa del Sol, a favorite tourist area. There were optional side trips to Tangier (Africa) and Granada, too. Many of the members' expenses for the trip were defrayed by selling candy in the Fall.

On March 5, the three high schools had a carry-in banquet at Northside, followed later by a gangster movie in Spanish in the auditorium. The members were also taught a Spanish dance at the carry-in.

French Club Has Initiation at Westside Park

French Club held its formal initiation at Westside Park on October 9. Initiates went through the difficult tasks of shaving balloons to rolling tomatoes with the nose to singing songs in French. After the initiation, members "indulged" in a full course picnic.

A Christmas party found the members walking the streets through ice and snow singing carols in French.

JCL Initiates Endure 'Tortures'

Junior Classical League, sponsored by Mrs. Judith Hahn, conducted an informal initiation on January 28 with initiates enduring various tortures. Blindfolded and helpless, the initiates were at the mercy of the members, as they were required to perform incredible feats, such as holding the eye of Cyclops and eating sardines.

A taxi service by chariots and rent-a-slave were featured by JCL at the Winter Festival. For only a small fortune, students could rent a slave for their own pleasures.

Exploratory Teachers Acquire Experience

Students interested in gaining experience in the teaching field elected exploratory teaching during the first semester. Students were assigned to an elementary school, and they attended the school for a minimum of one hour each afternoon.

Exploratory teachers were given grades by the teachers with whom they worked.

Future Homemakers of America, sponsored by Mrs. Cheryl Smothers and Mrs. Rebecca Holderman, planned various projects throughout the year. The group sold holly to parents and teachers at Christmas and took an active part in the Winter Festival.

Band Boosters Hold Auction for Uniforms

Along with voices, a music department needs music to close the gap, and the band provided the necessity. Presenting concerts, providing music for pep sessions and home games, and participating in local contests were of top priority to band members.

Band Boosters held an auction on October 27 in the Merchants Building at the fairgrounds. Netting $3,000 in proceeds, the money went toward Titanette outfits and the completion of the uniform order for the band.

Mr. Richard Campos directed the various sections of the band, the orchestra, and the stage band in community and school events throughout the year.

Orchestra Yields New Sounds, Concerts

Meeting the sixth period each school day, students in the orchestra enriched their musical abilities by putting their talents to use. The orchestra is divided into several units with strings — the harp, the violin, cellos, and a string bass.

Along with the other areas of the band, the orchestra presents concerts, too. On October 30, the orchestra played various selections in the auditorium.

Other than concerts, the orchestra plays a big role in the production of musicals, when the members assist the choral department.

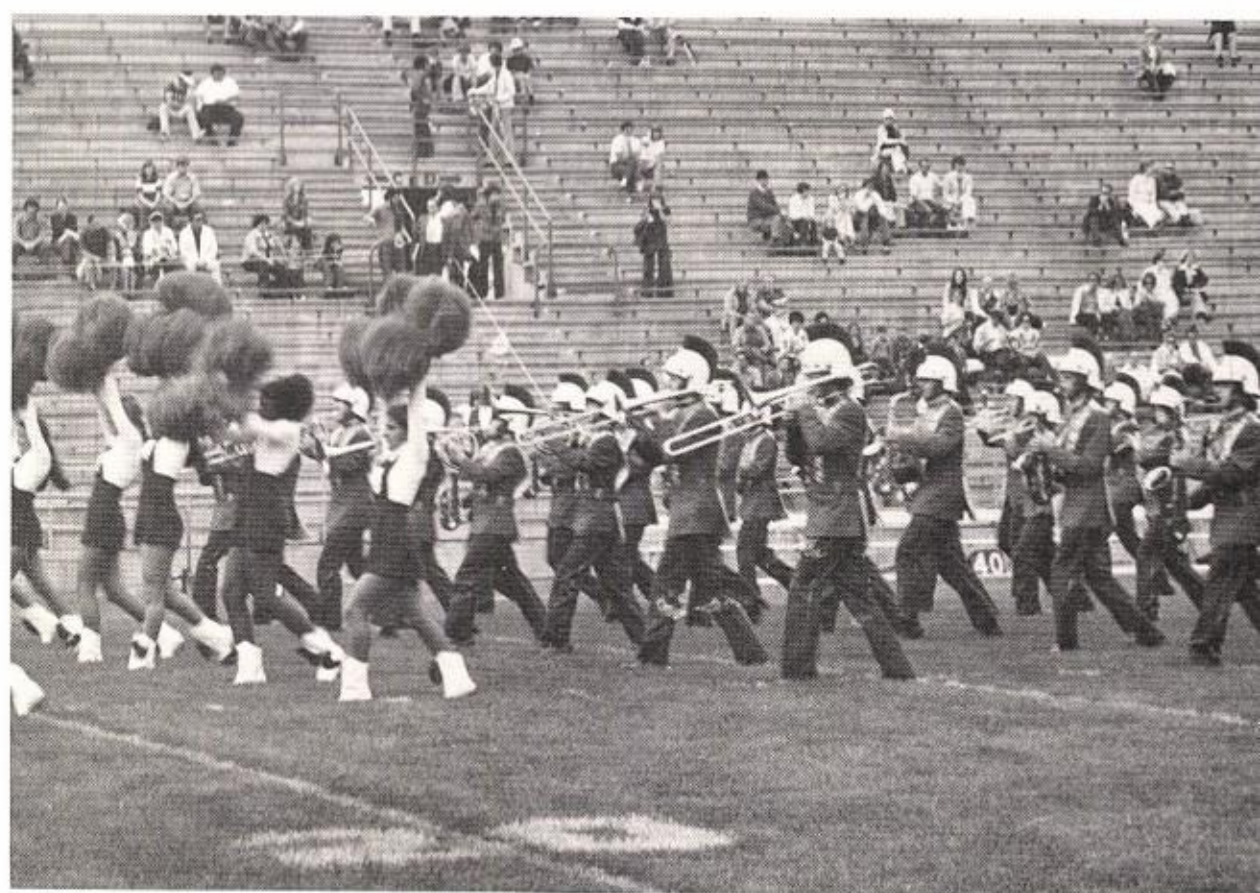

Combining with the different sections of the band, the orchestra provided a change of pace in music.

Titanettes, Band Combine Talents in Contests

Along with the band, the Titanettes found that it took hours of practice and long, hard drills to make perfect their routines. The Titanettes spent many of their summer vacation mornings marching in the hot sun so that everything would be perfect when the school year began.

For the first time, girls interested in marching could elect the course and receive credit as a Titanette.

The marching squad, under the direction of Miss Janie Wierks, practiced a new routine for each home game.

Throughout the year the Titanettes competed in various contests with the band, provided entertainment at the county fairs during the summer months, and marched many miles in community parades.

Girls Choose Northern Lights, Glee Club

Girls who elected some type of group singing in the music department excelled in Northern Lights and the Girls' Glee Club.

Northern Lights, under the direction of Mrs. Doris Faulkner, sang for many community groups.

Leading the Glee Club, Mr. Dennis Phipps worked with the girls the last period each day.

Concert, Swing Choirs Reach Out

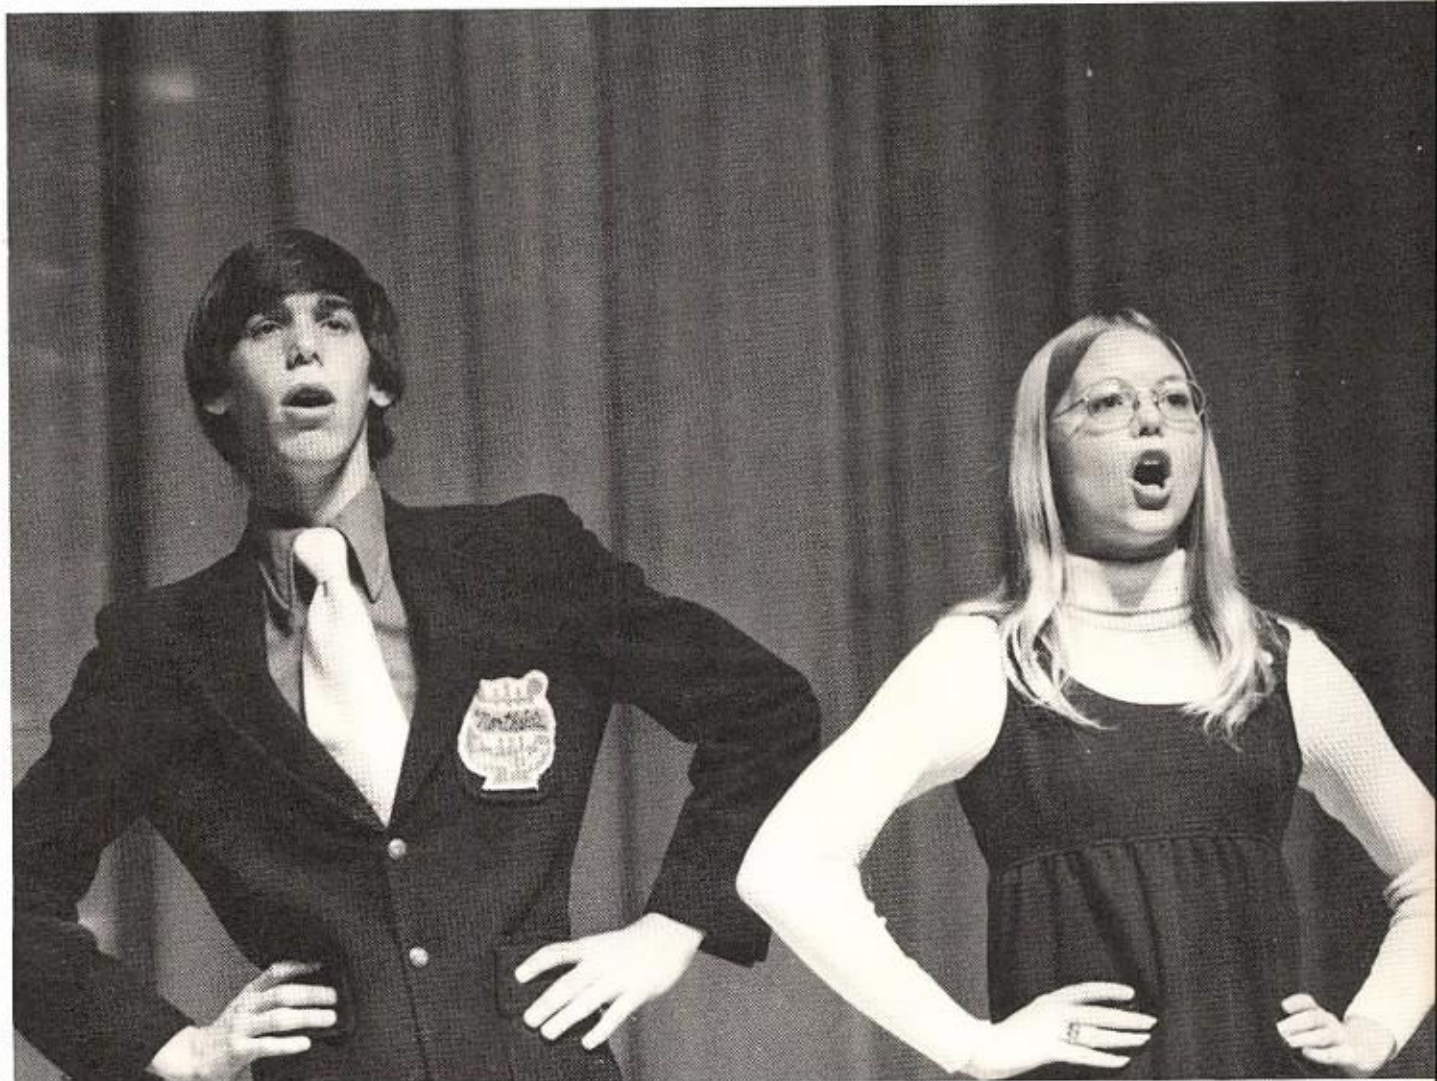

Both Concert Choirs and the Swing Choir participated in many concerts this year, serving to "reach out" to the community.

Getting the year off to a start, all of the choirs performed in the annual Fall Concert on October 29 for parents and teachers.

Swing Choir members participated in a parade held on October 27, during American Education Week, when North's first float, made by the group, was exhibited.

The annual Community Christmas Sing was held at the Fieldhouse on December 9. The live Christmas tree made its final appearance there last year, but it was replaced by an equally impressive plastic stained glass window this year, designed by Kristen Tomlinson, with the aid of Pam Williams, Ron Wilson, Dwayne Adrian, and Kim DeLong.

'Fight On, Fight On,

Fight On . . .

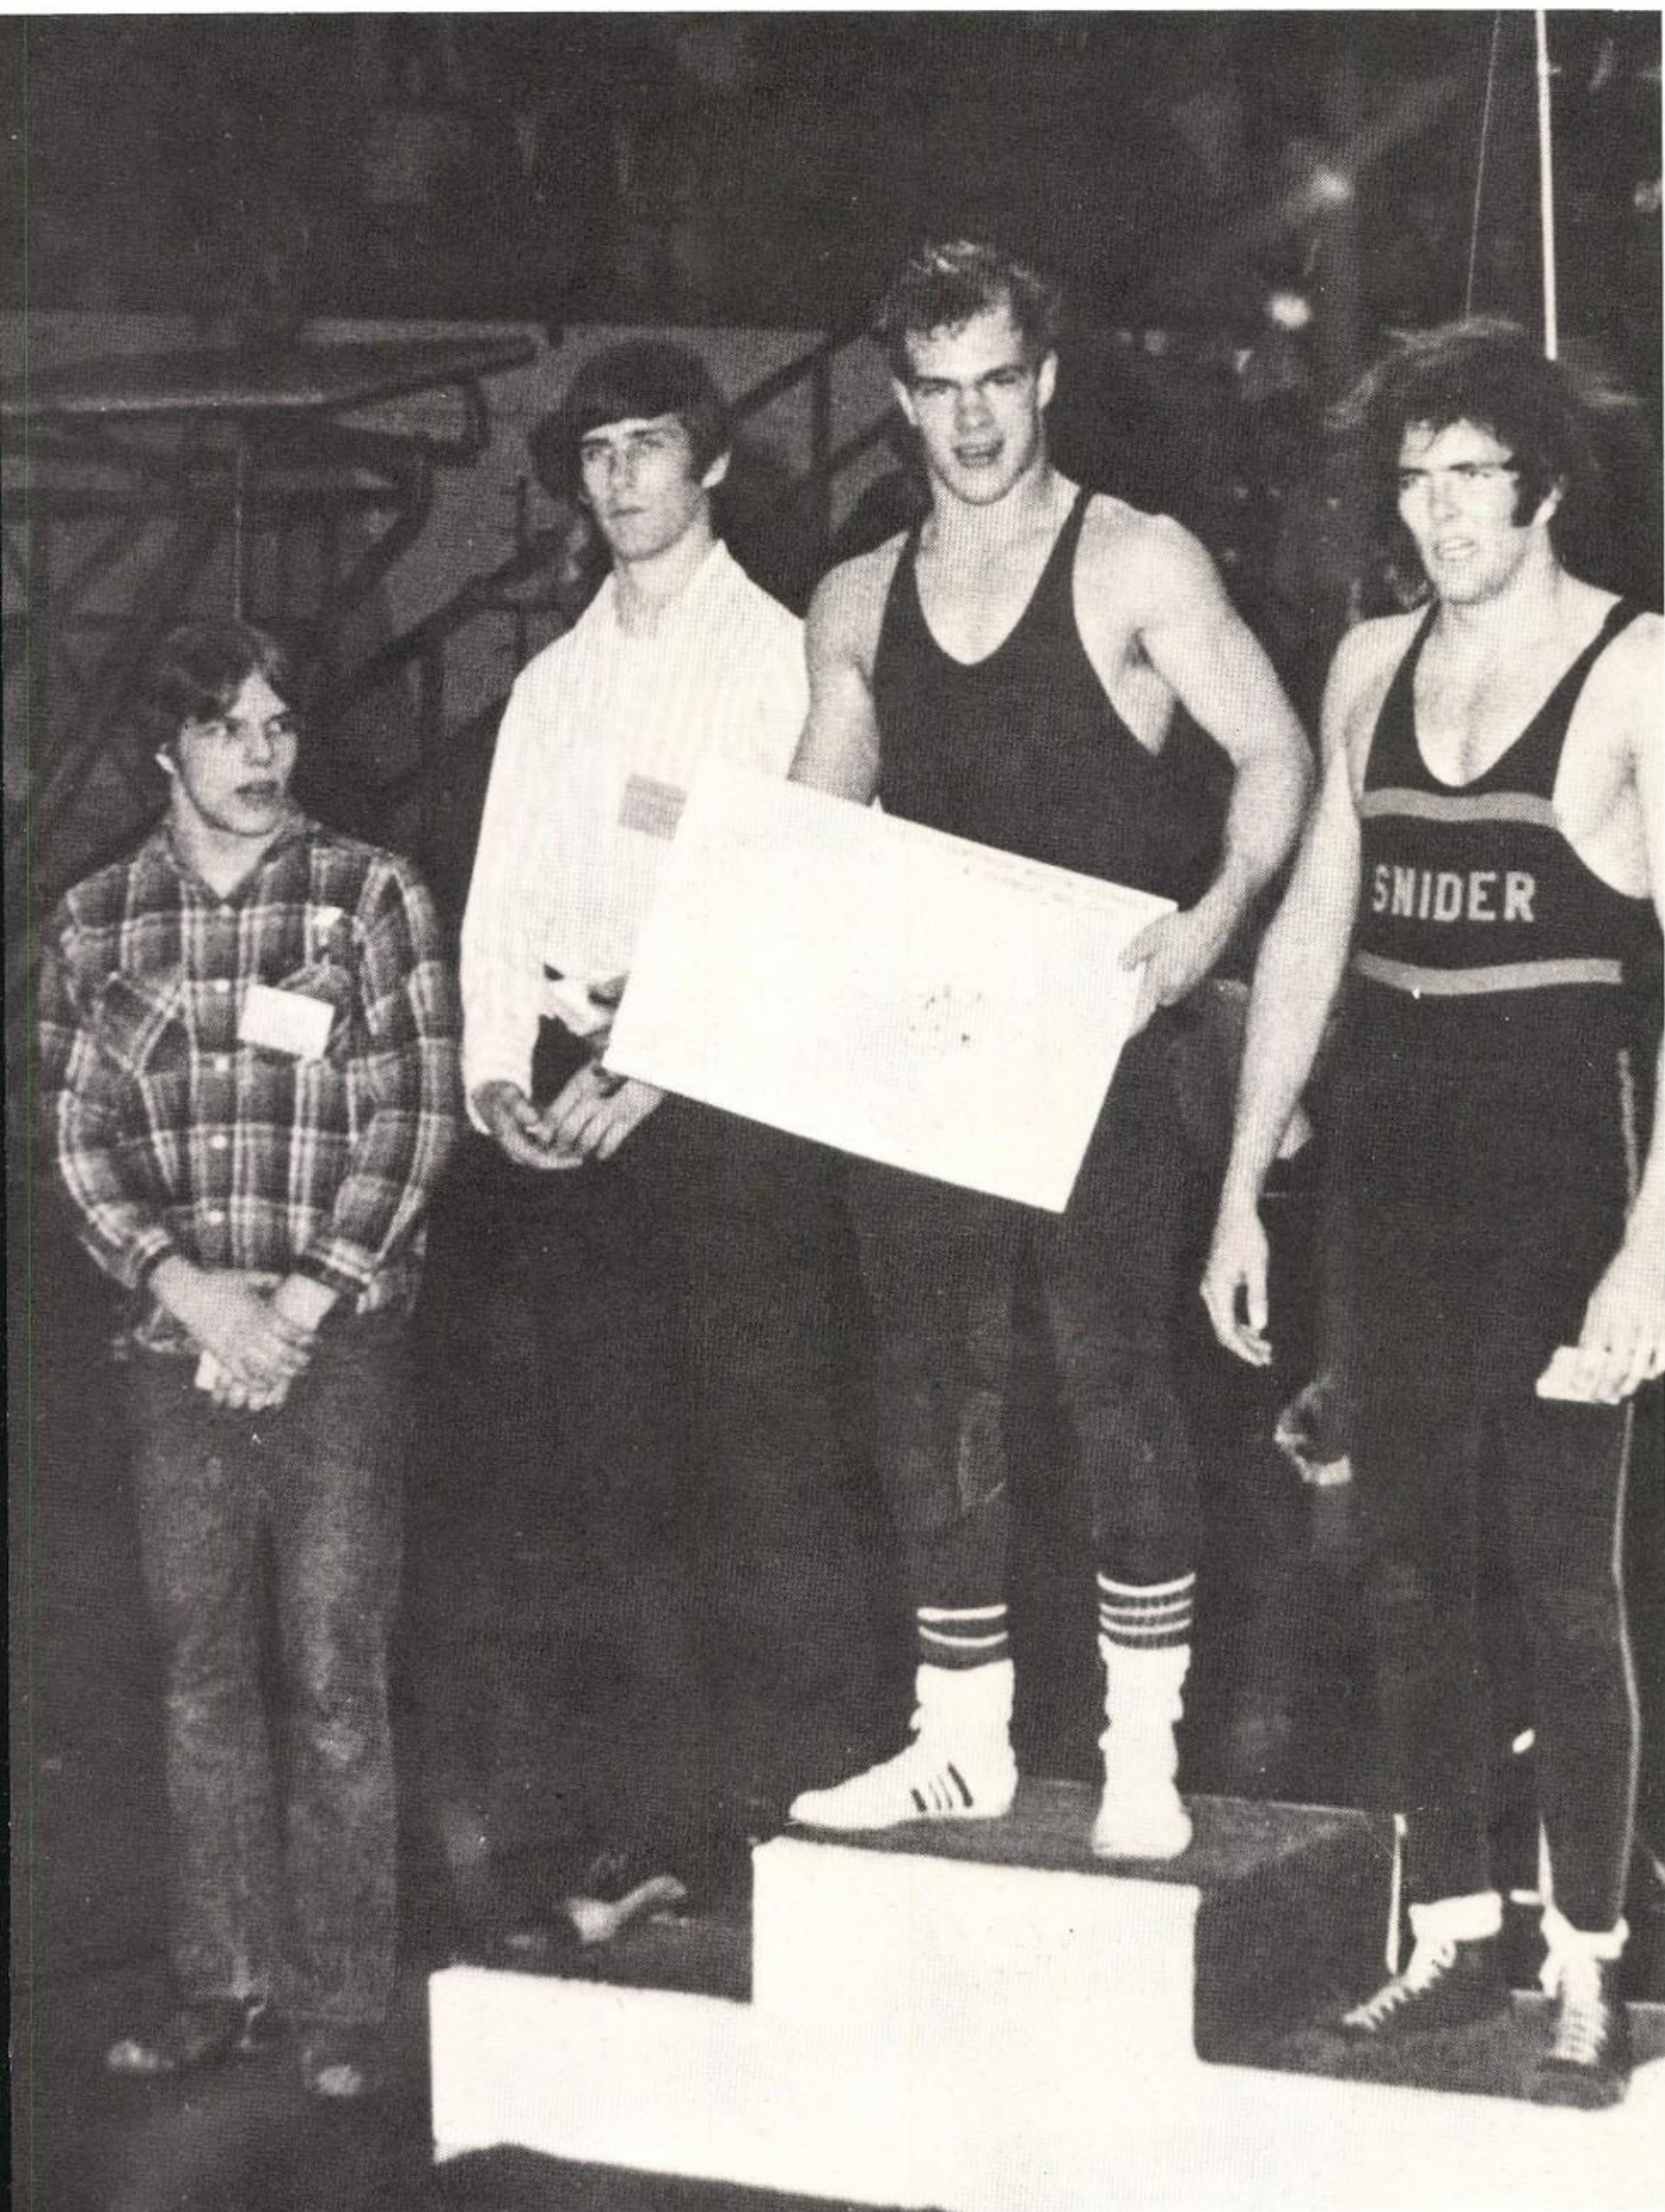

. . . to a victory,' scream all NHS sports fans and Titan backers. Participants in sports "reach out" as they try to keep North at the top of the list as a high school power.

Northside is proud to be able to send some of its athletes on to sectional, regional, and state competition. And yes — even more proud to claim Bud Palmer as the school's first state champion. Titan supporters believe that there will be more champions crowned and hope to produce many fine athletes in the future.

Cheerblocks, spirit societies, cheerleaders, and the faculty let NHS athletes know that they are behind them "all the way" as they advance to higher stakes and greater competition through active participation at pep sessions and on-the-spot support at the events themselves.

NHS athletes realize that to continue to exhibit their power, it is necessary to fight on.

Inexperienced Team Claims 7-3 Record

Tom Tharp, Muncie's leading scorer with 58 points, gains yardage against Lafayette Central Catholic, as Tim Shaffer and Dennis Whitacre block.

With very few returning lettermen and only one starter from last year, a difficult season was forecast for the young Titans. However, the squad proved to be full of surprises as it went 3-0 in the Olympic Conference to win the Conference championship. Northside outscored Conference opponents a total of 70 points to nine. Even though the Titans lacked experience, they more than made up for it with outstanding desire and a total team effort that led to a 7-3 record, playing four state-ranked teams.

The season was a total team effort, but some players deserve special mention. James Bryant was named outstanding defensive lineman; Mike Johnston, outstanding offensive lineman; Tim Shaffer, outstanding offensive back; Jim Smith, outstanding defensive back; and Mike Johnston and Jim Smith, honorary captains. Tom Tharp led all city players in total points scored.

The junior varsity football team displayed great enthusiasm and spirit as well as skill in posting its 7-1 season record. The Jayvees were a well balanced team, but certain players deserve special credit. Keith Smith, the Titans' quarterback, was awarded the team's best offensive back honor. Rob Barnes, center, was chosen best offensive lineman; Phil Clark was named best defensive back; and defensive tackle Kevin Bridges was selected best defensive lineman.

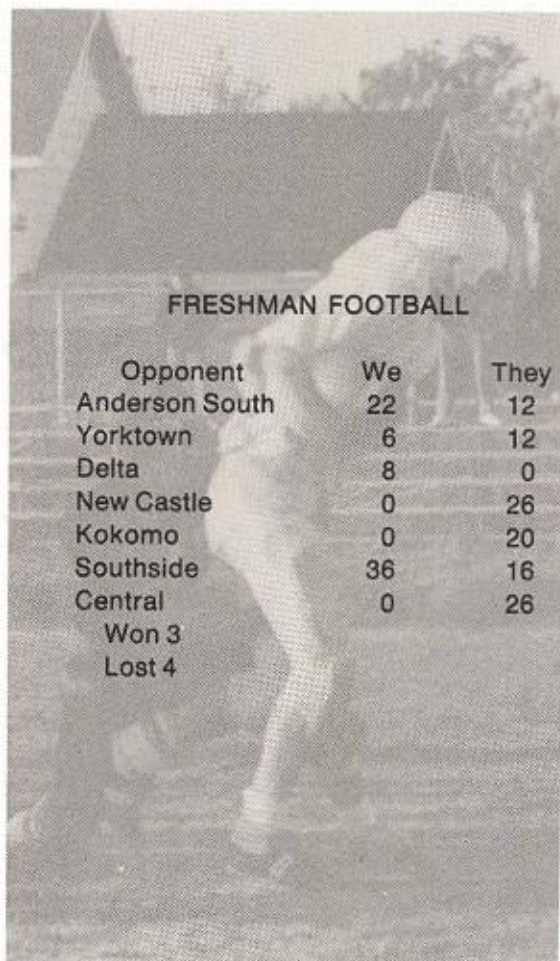

The only junior varsity loss was to Conference foe Kokomo Haworth. This game found the Huskies deep in Titan territory the whole first half, as fumbles and poor field position aided Kokomo to a 12-0 half time lead. The Titans dominated second half play, but were handicapped by a rash of penalties which kept the Titans away from the Huskies' goal line and perfect season.

Freshman football players, coached by Mr. Robert Carmichael and Mr. Dennis Baron, posted a 3-4 record in their first gridiron attempt at North. The team was victorious over Anderson South, Delta, and Muncie South, but succumbed to Yorktown, New Castle, Kokomo, and Muncie Central. The squad was hampered by numerous injuries and lack of depth, partially accounting for a losing season, determined in the final game, a 0-26 loss to Muncie Central.

Named outstanding players at the Fall Sports Banquet were Jim McClure and team captain Jeff Bird, best backs; Tim Humbert, best lineman; and Tim Green, most improved player. James Buchanan received the Coaches' award.

Harriers Place Tenth in State

Although placing tenth in the state finals was less than hoped for, the varsity cross country team recorded its best season in school history. The Titans placed second in the Regional behind Carmel, first in the Sectional, and first in the Olympic Conference.

Senior Joe Sherman was named co-captain and most valuable runner at the fall sports banquet, after taking eight first places during the season, including firsts in the Conference and Sectional.

Other valuable runners were senior co-captain Don McClellan; sophomores Kelley Marsh, Jerry Davey, and David Kelley; junior Greg Cross; and senior Brad Craft.

The Jayvees finished 7-1, and took the city championship. The freshman team went 3-1, with co-captains and co-MVP's Mike Duer-son and Scott Maves leading the way.

Tennis Team Captures Sectional, Conference

A strong backhand helps co-captain Brock Gordon become a winner.

Other co-captain Tim Vasalakis skillfully plays the net.

Finishing the 1973 season strong, the Titan Tennis team won its last nine dual meets, and went on to place first in the Olympic Conference with 20 points, first in the Sectional with 27 points, and fifth in the Regional with one point.

Brock Gordon, the Titans' Most Valuable Player and co-captain, won the singles' Conference championship, and was a member of the doubles team that won the sectional. Tim Vasalakis, the Titans' other co-captain, was Brock's partner in winning the Sectional championship. He also teamed with Mike Baur to win the Conference doubles.

The doubles team of Sam Drummer and Mike Baur took second in the Sectional behind Gordon and Vasalakis. Dick Wakefield and Andre Gouveia also played a big part in North's 13-2 season record.

The Titan Jayvees finished the year with a 7-2 season record. Mr. Curt Ervin coached both teams.

Titan Cagers "Rip City" Through Sectional

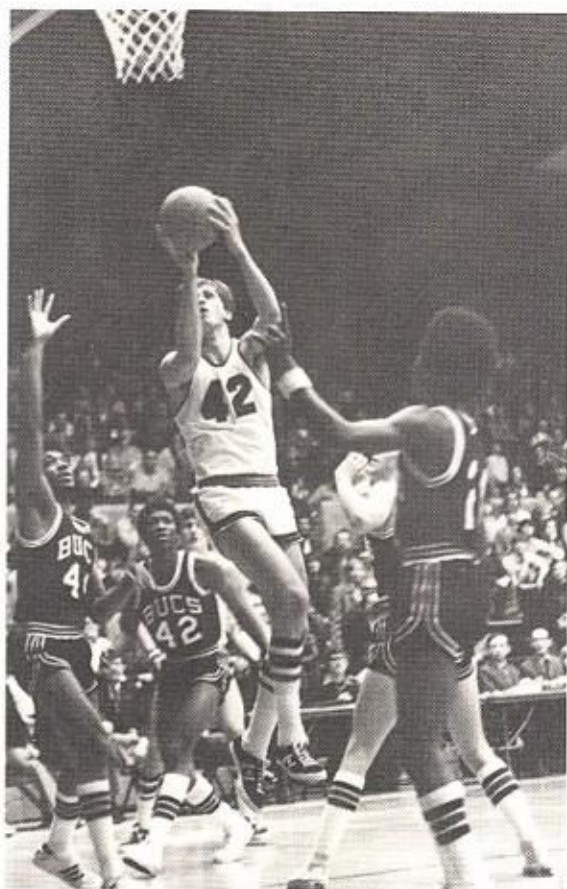

Sam Drummer skies high to get the tip. North defeated Central 90-72, and went on to win their first Muncie Sectional championship.

Looking forward to something even bigger than their first Sectional championship, the tall and mighty Titans were preparing for Regional competition at New Castle when final yearbook copy went to press. "Rip City" became an "inside" slogan at tourney time, and only Titan followers knew the true meaning.

Winning 10 of their last 11 games, the cagers streaked into the Muncie Sectional with a 15-5 record. North floated by South 84-65, and Central 90-72, and then exploded to a 90-60 win over Delta to claim the school's first Sectional trophy.

Sam Drummer, second leading scorer in the city with a 22.1 average, scored 80 points in the sectional, pulled down 37 rebounds, and passed out 15 assists. Pete Kuzma led the city scoring race with a 23.6 average, and totaled 70 points and 21 rebounds in Sectional play. Gene Amlin rounded out the front line to make it one of the best in the state, and the improved play of guards Rick Donati, Greg Dobbs, and excellent bench strength provided Coach Dickerson's winning combination.

Jayvees Improve in Latter Part of Season

Winning eight of their last nine games, the Titan Jayvees finished the season with an impressive 13-7 record. Big wins were against New Castle, Ft. Wayne South, Richmond, and Indianapolis Cathedral.

Northside fans came out early to see the young Titans perform, since most encounters were close and went down to the wire. Of the seven losses, three were by one or two points, while four victories were by three or less.

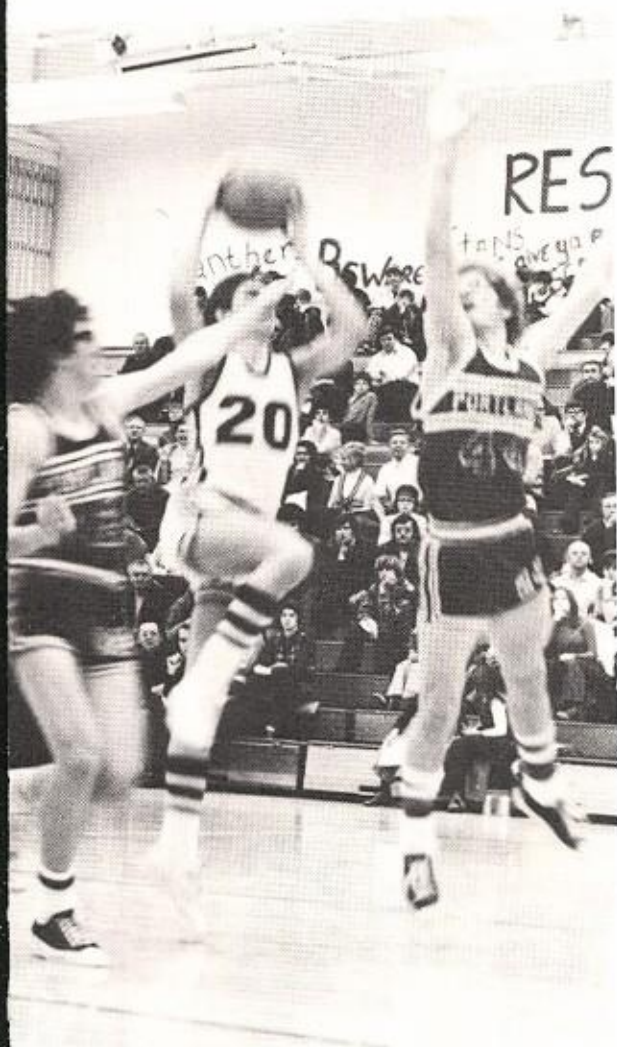

Coach Curt Ervin's crew started out slowly, losing their first two ball games, but then caught fire, winning five in a row before losing to the Madison Heights Pirates. They finished the campaign with five straight victories.

The reserve squad averaged 54.2 points per game, while holding their opponents to only 46.8. Twelve sophomores and two juniors comprised the team.

Freshman standout Eric Eckelman takes a baseline shot over a Richmond defender. The Titans went on to win the game 67-65 in overtime.

Compiling the best won-lost record of any freshman basketball team in the history of Northside, the 1973-74 frosh won the City championship for the third consecutive year.

After building a 13-3 season record, the young Titans defeated Muncie Central 63-52 in the first round of the city tourney, and then knocked off Yorktown 52-44 in the championship game.

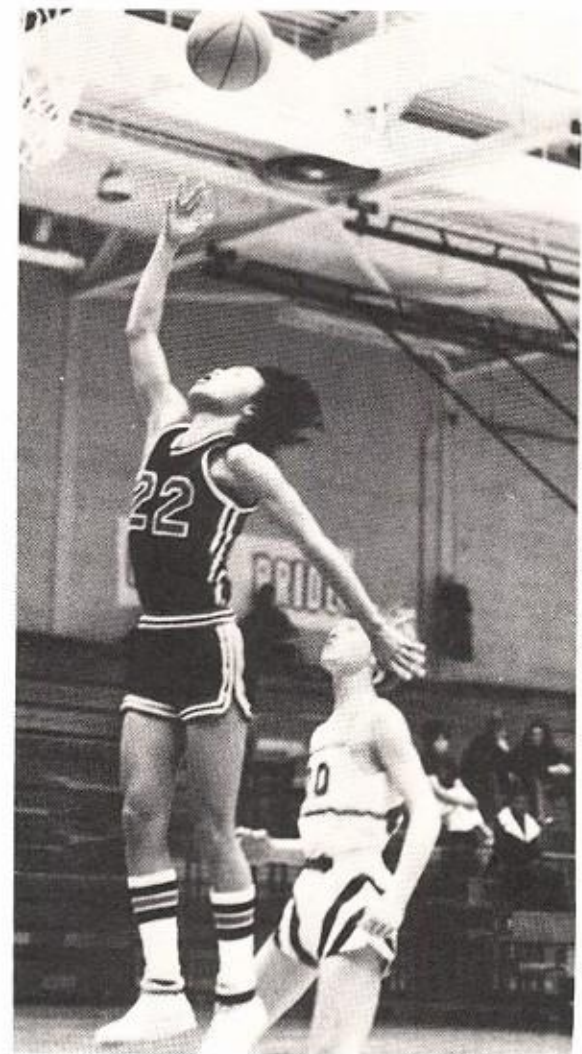

The freshmen as a team shot .502 from the field, and they averaged 55.9 points per game, both of which were new freshman records. Eric Eckelman set some individual records by scoring 269 points and shooting 58.6 percent from the field. He also set a school record with his 75.5 percent free throw shooting.

Grapplers Gain First IHSA State Crown

On Saturday, Feb. 23, 1974, Coach Fred Ginther's mighty Titan wrestlers won the first IHSA state championship for Northside. In winning the State, the Titans outscored Bloomington South, a team that had been state champs for the last five years, 46-36. Logansport was third with 24½ points.

Senior Bud Palmer brought his high school career to an end when he decisioned Southport's Jeff Pittman, 9-2, to take his second straight state championship in the 167 pound weight class. Bud compiled a 28-0 record with 24 pins this season, and has won his last 57 consecutive matches over the last two years. Bud also received the Harold F. Mumby Award for mental attitude to put the finishing touches on his glorious career.

Placing second in the State were Dennis Whitacre at 138; James Toomer at 132; and Larry Kibler at 185. Carl Jackson was fourth at 105.

The Titan baseball team played with seniors for the first time during the 1973 season. Ramon Avila, Steve Shondell, John Coers, Steve Hill, Joe Chapman, and Charles Elliott provided the experience which helped the Titans to their first Sectional crown and a Regional victory, before bowing to South Adams in the Regional finals.

Pete Kuzma, the team's Most Valuable Player, led in batting with a .386 average, pitched 11 wins and four losses, and held an earned run average of 1.23 runs per game.

Tim Shaffer led the team in hits with 36, and Joe Chapman led in home runs with three. All-Conference players were Steve Hill, outfield; Ramon Avila, first base; and John Coers, catcher.

The reserves posted a 9-5 record for the spring, and were 12-2 in summer play.

Six Trackmen Place in State Meet

Notice the leg muscles as Sam Drummer prepares to clear the bar.

Luther Bradley easily wins the 100 yard dash. He was North's MVR.

How's this for a track season? Coach Ken Miller's Titans posted a 7-1 varsity season, won the Olympic Conference, took first place in the Sectional, second in the Regional, and sent six men to the State meet. The junior varsity claimed a 6-2 season record, while the freshmen were crowned City champs with a 7-0 record.

Luther Bradley, Tom Sherman, Dan Reno, and Kelley Marsh took third in the State mile relay event with a time of 3:22.6. Also placing in the State meet were Willie Young, sixth in the long jump with a jump of 22'5", and Don McClellan, twelfth in the mile with a 4:19.

Bradley led the Titans in scoring, and was chosen the team's Most Valuable Runner. Young was second in scoring, Sam Drummer, third, and McClellan, fourth. Bradley and Wes Lyon were the team's co-captains.

Assisting Mr. Miller were Mr. Dallas Kunkle and Mr. William Imes.

Potential Good for Young Golfers in '74

The 1973 varsity golf team was considerably better than the record 5-7 indicates, and should improve in future years. Two freshmen and two sophomores played varsity along with senior Steve Kehoe, who had the lowest scoring average with 78.6 strokes per game.

The Titans lost close encounters to Delta, 176-174; to Kokomo Haworth, 339-338; and to Madison Heights by four strokes, 327-323.

North's golfers were fourth in the Olympic Conference, sixth in the Winchester Invitational, sixth in the Northwestern Invitational, and seventh at the Sectional.

The Jayvees had a 3-5 record, also losing close matches to South, 192-187, and to Winchester, 197-187.

Even though both teams finished under .500 for the season, the future looks bright with several returning golfers bursting with desire and potential.

Spikers Take State Championship

Senior Steve Kehoe blocks the ball in preparation for the state tournament.

Holding the honor of bringing the first state championship trophy in a team sport to Northside in 1972, the boys' volleyball team repeated the feat in 1973. Although boys' volleyball is not yet an official IHSA sport, the tournament had the association's approval, and twenty teams from around the state participated. More schools indicated interest in the 1974 tournament.

Playing in Ball State's Men's Gymnasium on Saturday, March 31, the Titan spikers defeated Fort Wayne Wayne in the final match 15-11 and 15-2. To reach the semi-final game in the evening, North overpowered Peru, Marion, Southport, and Muncie Central during morning and afternoon round robin play.

Semi-final results were North over Heritage, and Fort Wayne Wayne over Leo.

Girls' Sports Expand with Tennis and Track

Female athletes wound up the 1973 season with a respectable tennis team record of 4 wins and one loss, while the track team posted a 1-2 record. Tennis team coach, Mrs. Penny Justin, was pleased with her girls' effort as their only defeat came at the hands of New Castle. Frosh Ann Baur topped off the season by advancing to the state meet in the singles division. The track team, coached by Miss Carol Clark, won the Delta, Cowan, North 3-way meet but fell to South and Yorktown in the last two meets of the season. Representing the Titan girls, frosh Stella Carr advanced to the State meet in the 100 yard dash. Girls' sports are rapidly expanding at NHS.

Girls at Northside began to emerge this year as they made a name for themselves in the field of athletics. The girls' volleyball team boasted an outstanding season, ending 15-2, and traveling to the state tournament. Coach Debbie Millbern was proud of her young Titan girls and is looking forward to next year when all of her team will return. Miss Millbern is also coach of the basketball team which compiled a record of 5-3. As the yearbook went to press, Janie Wierks was coaching her swimming team to a good start as they were 3-0. Her gymnastics team had a record of 5-1 with one meet left.

Cheerleaders Promote Spirit, Support Teams

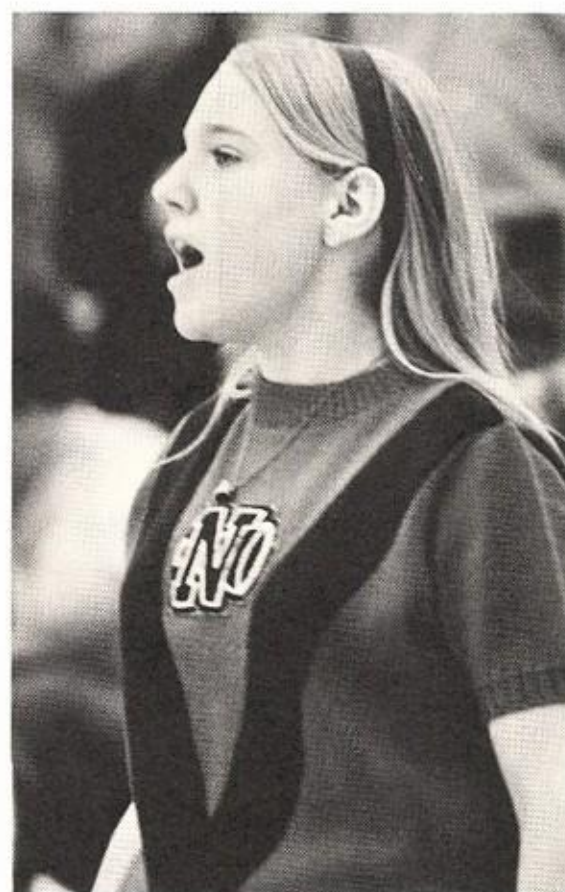

The cheerleaders' job is to cheer on their school teams and to help promote spirit in school. Being a cheerleader is not an easy job. It requires a lot of time and some individual sacrifices. This year's cheerleaders not only supported their teams but also competed with other squads. Varsity and reserve cheerleaders participated in a contest at the Indiana State Fair and the Wapahani Invitational. In the Wapahani contest the reserves finished first in their division and the varsity came in second in theirs.

In addition to making signs and decorating lockers, the cheerleaders raised money for uniforms by selling shirts and holding a cheerleading clinic at Anthony School.

Freshman cheerleaders showed support for their teams by posting signs and yelling at sports events. The six girls also attended a cheerleading clinic at Ball State in the fall to improve their form.

'Carry on, Carry on,

Carry on . . .

. . . teachers and students,' echo the voices of Northside graduates.

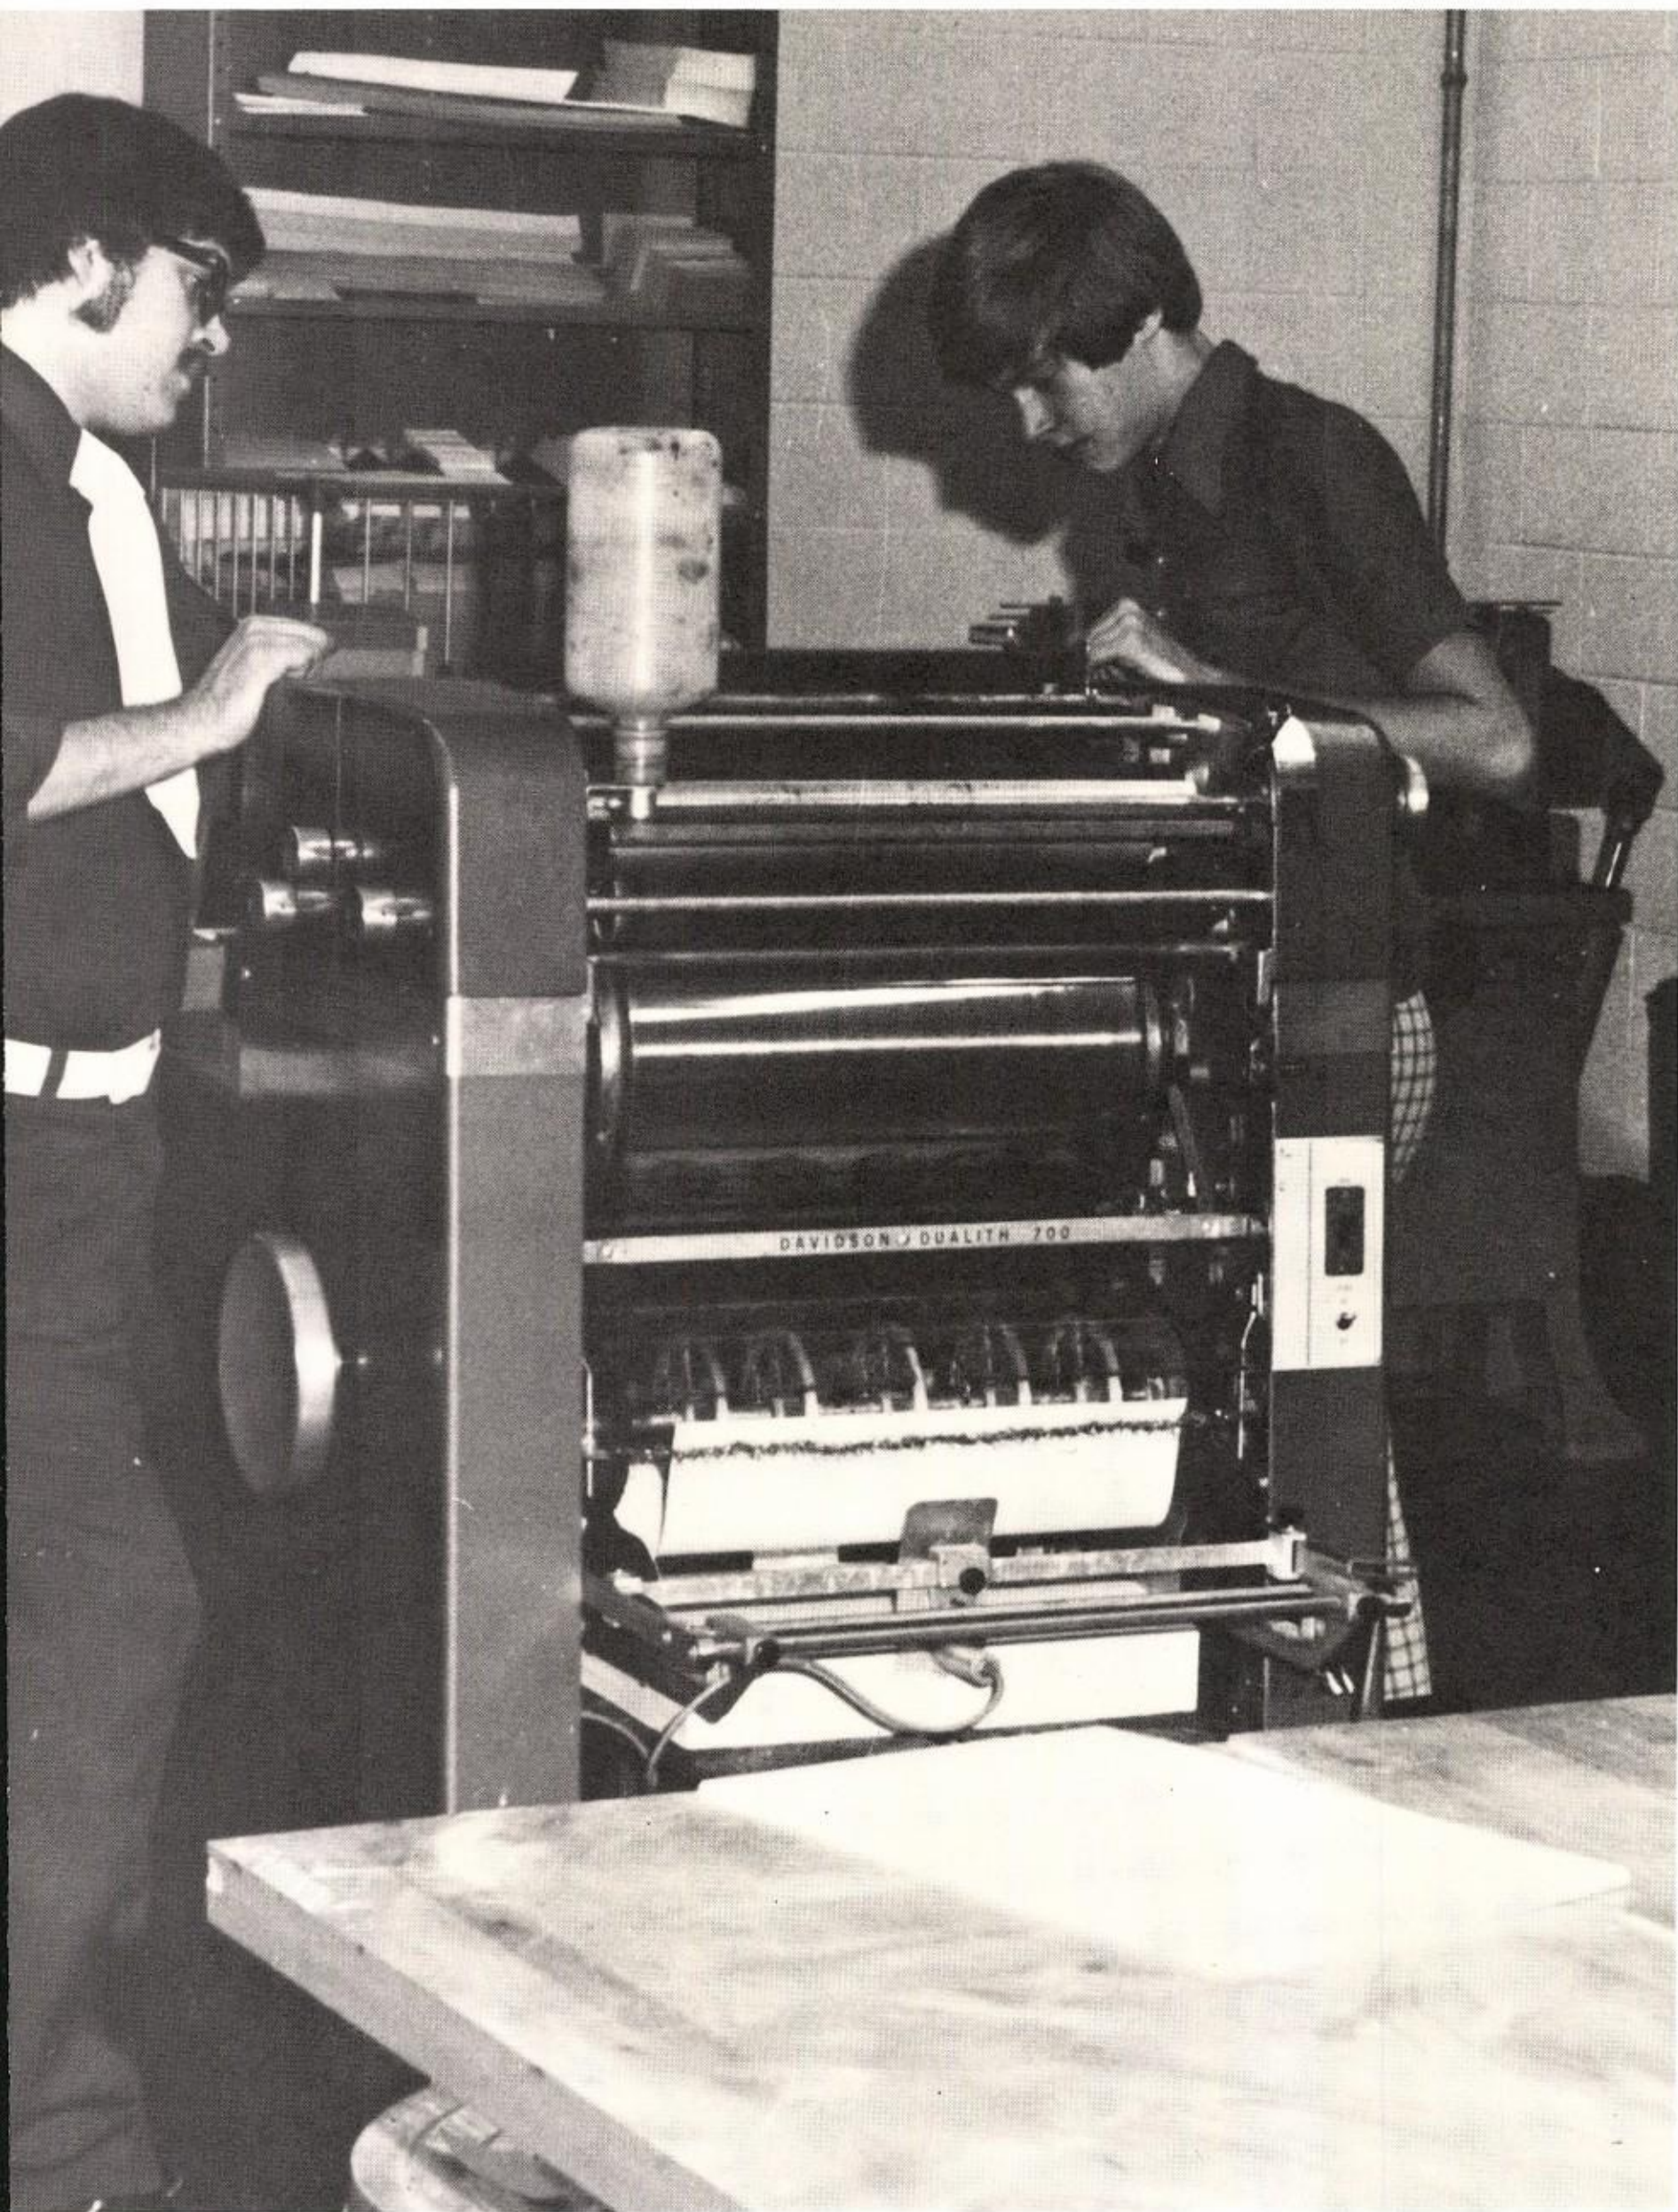

Northside students and faculty work together in every department. In addition to teaching, faculty members meet to exchange ideas, sponsor clubs, and support the school at sports events.

Each class elects officers and organizes spirit and money-making activities. Freshmen and sophomores quickly catch the Titan spirit by supporting the freshmen and reserve teams. The junior class holds car washes, while seniors plan special events for graduation.

The student body is made up of individuals with different interests and backgrounds. Between classes and during lunch periods, students have an opportunity to talk with friends and acquire new friendships.

In the classroom and at extra-curricular activities, people find time for people.

Seniors: First Class to Complete Four Years at NHS

After four years of walking in the shadows of previous classes, the class of '74 stepped into the sunshine to become the elite seniors. Expressing emotions of ecstasy and apathy, they made plans for college, careers, marriage, and life. With the feelings of uncertainty and apprehension that afflict all those making important decisions in life, the 325 seniors learned to accept new responsibilities on their way to maturity. They had the chance to express themselves and to show others around them their potential, and they passed!

Senior Ann Liston expresses the emotion felt by many after completing four years at NHS.

Juniors Help Carry on Traditions at NHS

As in most junior classes, prom preparations and class activities were first on the minds of many. Various fund raising projects were undertaken with a great deal of enthusiasm. Linda Clark, president; Tina Roch, vice-president; and Nancy Boyd, secretary-treasurer, helped lead their class in these activities. Class dues were collected not only to increase the financial state of the juniors, but to create class unity. With three years under their belts, the juniors are ready to step into the shoes of the seniors.

Moving slowly up the high school ladder, the sophomore class passed their freshman plateau only to look forward to two more. Showing much enthusiasm for life and forming tentative goals for the future, the sophomores were voted the most spirited class at NHS. Class offices were pursued by many sophomores with Julie Morris being elected president; Tom Mihal, vice-president; and Shelley Walker, secretary-treasurer. The sophomore class really sought to be a vital part of Northside High School.

Freshmen Enter NHS with High Hopes

The freshmen arrived and became a necessary part of Northside. Feelings of confusion, joy, and frustration were felt by many. Getting involved and feeling a part of NHS was one of the first goals. New friendships and new experiences were shared. Responsibilities increased with many new and different classes. To help guide their class, the frosh elected Mike Duerson, president; Ron Wilson, vice-president; and Leigh Hill, secretary-treasurer.

Anticipating the start of one of North's many pep sessions are freshmen Gretchen Bookout and Kathy Getchell.

'Trade on, Trade on,

Trade on . . .

. . . with community merchants and businessmen,' says Kollol Pal, business editor of the North Star.

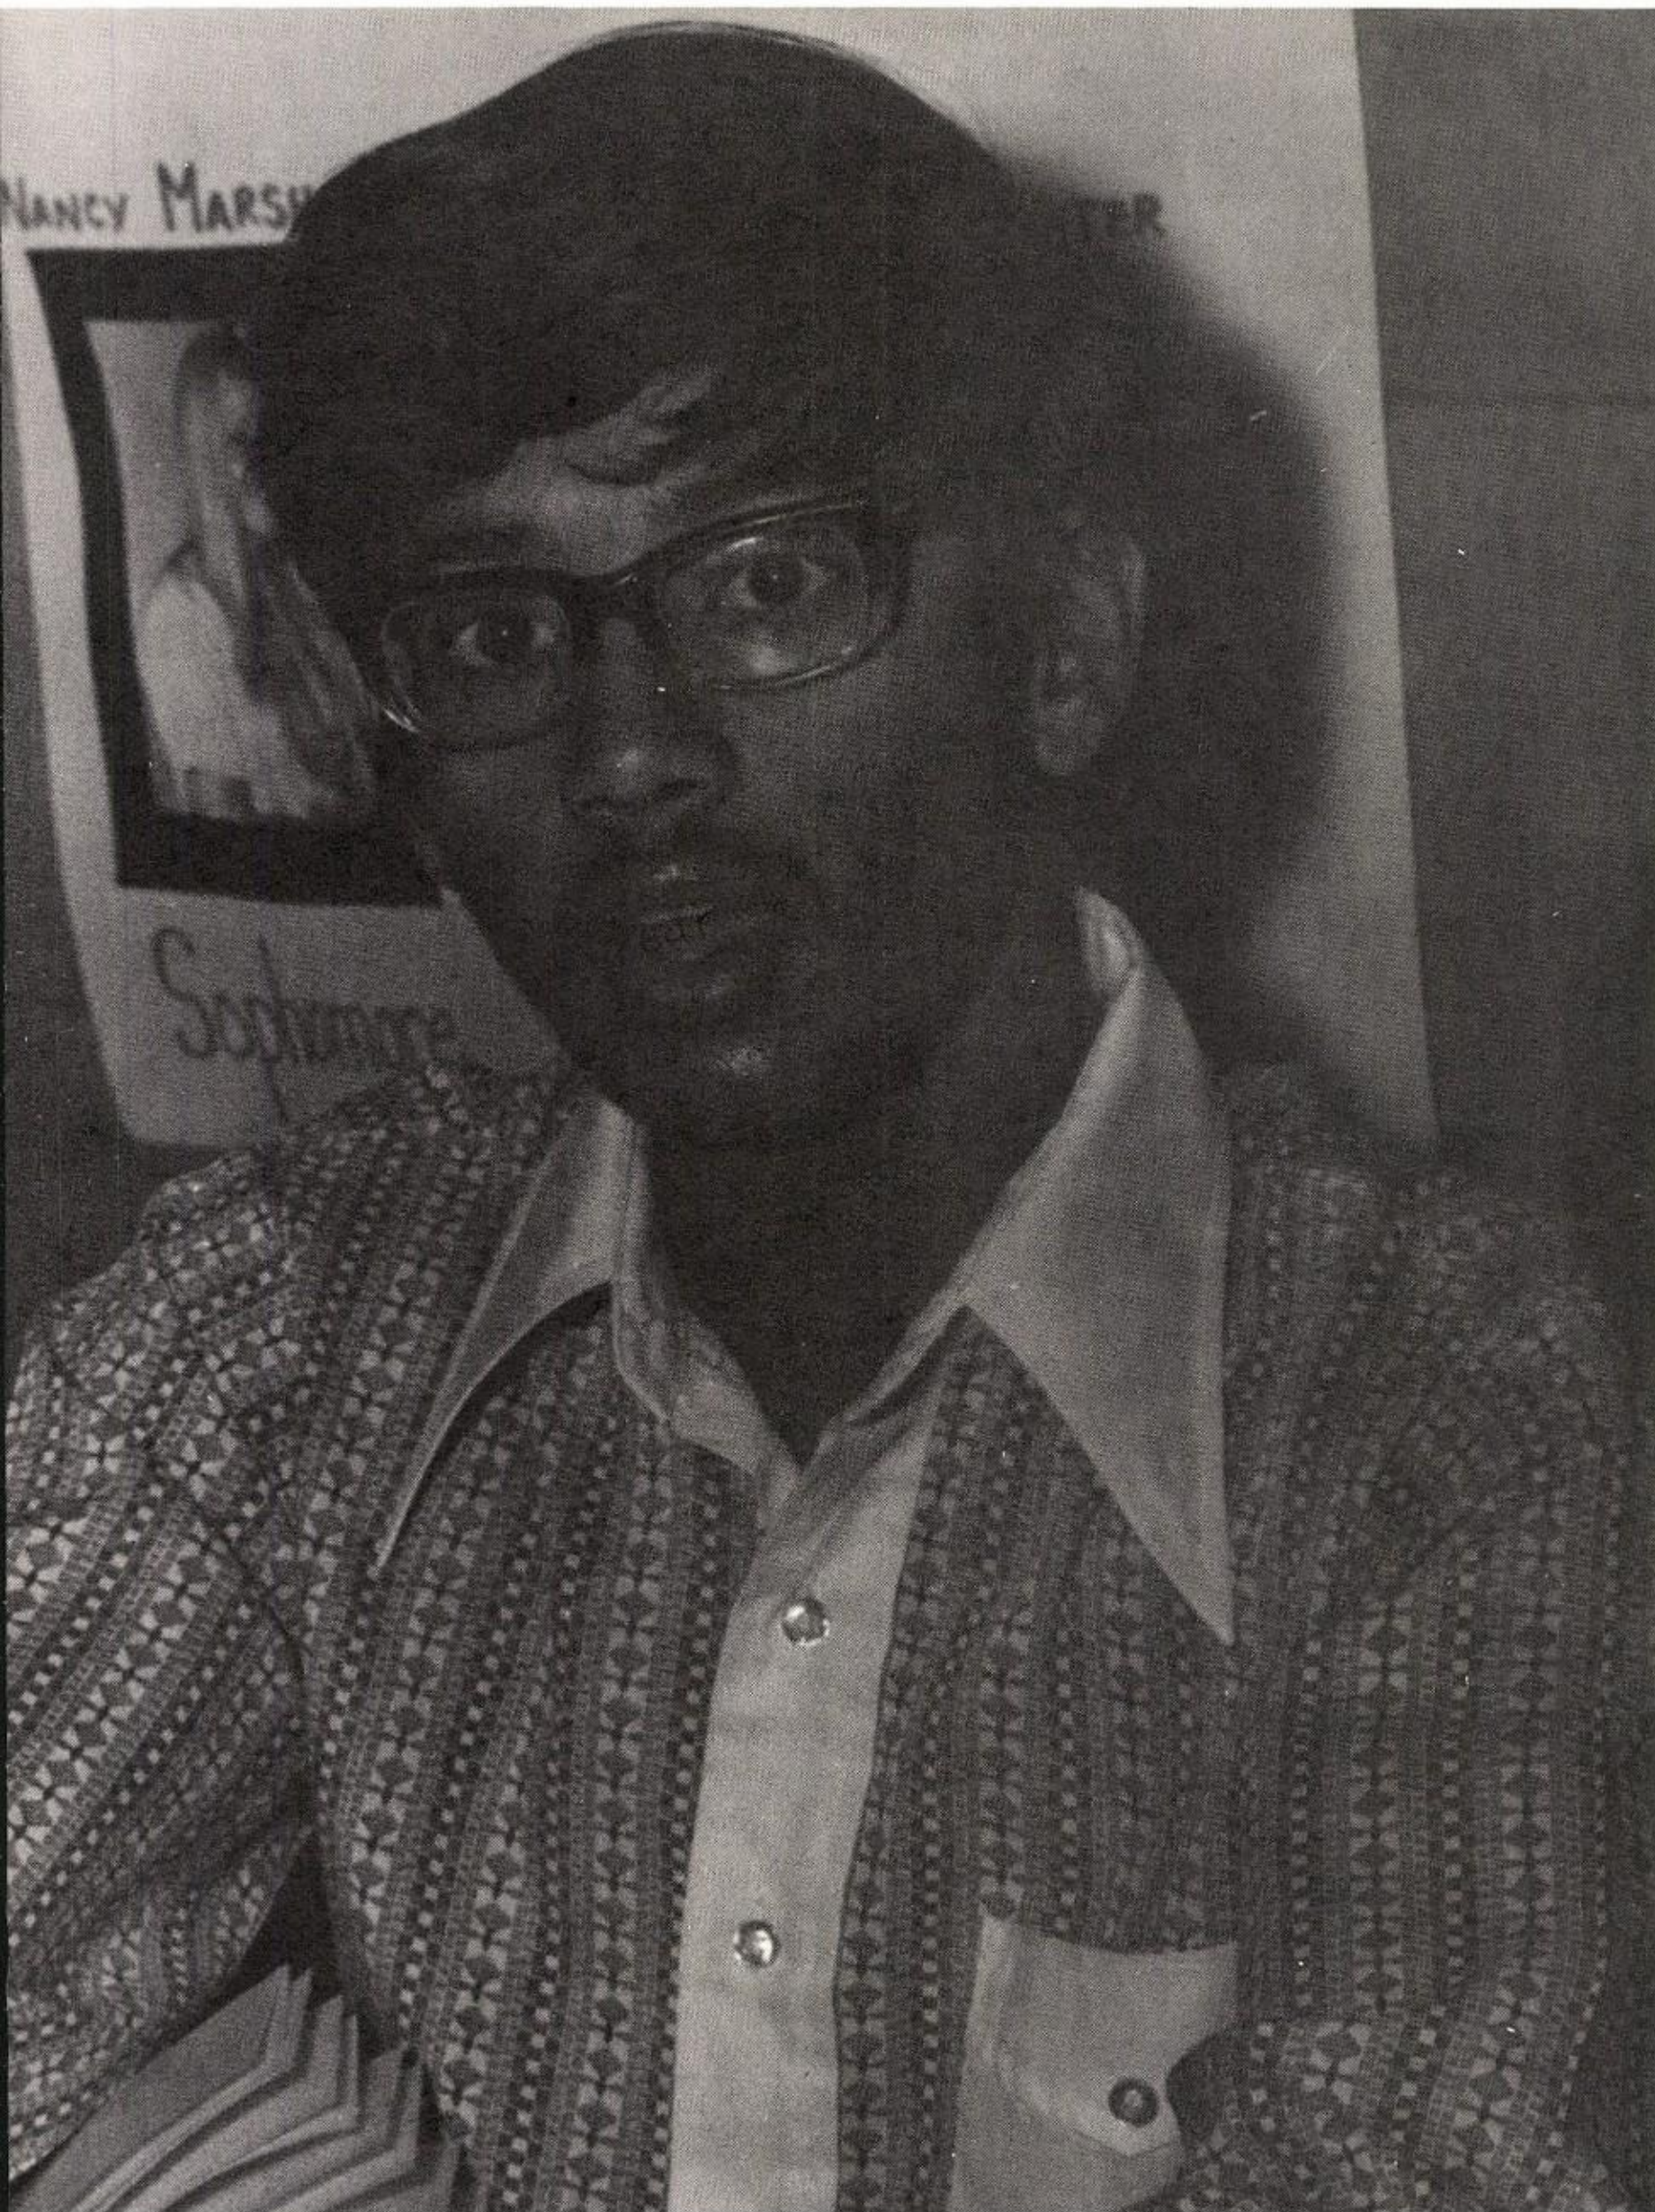

Kollol tries to bridge the gap between merchants and students through advertisements from local businesses and establishments. Through advertising, students are able to acquaint themselves with the business world around them.

Students represent a large portion of the buying power of today, and merchants, well aware of this, seek to meet the needs of students.

Northside students come face to face with merchants and businessmen through courses offered at school, such as distributive education and co-operative office education. Furthermore, part-time jobs provide students with additional knowledge of the business community in which they live.

Thus, community merchants and students "reach out" to aid each other, and both profit.

If We Never Reach Out

In its fourth year of existence, Northside High School sought to "reach out" to the community in all areas. School facilities were opened up for public use, and Northside students participated in city projects and events.

Many students helped to better community-school relations by taking on individual responsibilities.

Sports played a big part in bringing community interest into the school when the wrestling, swimming, and basketball teams gained state-wide recognition.

With the community and the school working together, how can we not "reach out" to each other's needs?

FAR LEFT: As her graduation present to Reverend Frank Alexander, pastor of the Union Baptist Church, Lonelle Thompson constructed a green plaid suit tailored especially for him.

LEFT: Representing the faculty, Mr. Dallas Kunkle chalks up two more points for North against the WOWO Aces.

BELOW: Security officers at Northside, Mr. Earl Hoover, Mr. Norman Irelan, and Mr. Sonny Burks, supervise a home basketball game.

ABOVE: Faculty cheerleader Mrs. Kay Rankin exhibits her Titan spirit when the male faculty takes on the WOWO Aces.

With the disadvantages of a predominantly inexperienced staff and a shortage of staff members, there were reservations in the minds of those persons who worked on the book as to whether or not it would ever come about.

Staffers met periodically throughout the summer to "get in gear" and put some enthusiasm into their efforts on the book. Mr. Russ Robinson, yearbook representative from ICP, held a workshop in May to instruct the staff on various facets of yearbook construction.

For the first time, students who ordered a yearbook cast a vote for a yearbook queen from one of the classes. The queen is pictured in the book and was honored at an autograph party when books were distributed.

Late night sessions, frustrations, tears, and rushed deadlines went along with meeting a deadline. Putting out the fourth edition, the North Star yearbook staff tried to show to its readers that Northside "reaches out" to the community in nearly all respects.
